SENATOR HUEY LONG IS SHOT IN ABDOMEN IN CORRIDOR OF LOUISIANA STATE CAPITOL

DUCE URGES PEACE BUT SAYS COUNTRY SHALL MARCH ON

ROME INDIFFERENT TO LEAGUE ACTIONS

Informed Circles Assert Mussolini Is Not Bluff-
ing and Only Question of Date of War Remains.

ROME, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini proclaimed today, in two brief speeches, the "Italian people want peace provided it is accompanied by justice," and on the other hand—"we shall march straight on."

His first declaration was made to an international convention of former service men from many countries, including the United States; his second to 40,000 fascist youths.

A high authority said tonight the apparent contradiction in Mr. Duce's pronouncements did not constitute any disparity in views. He said the peace statement interpreted the general view of the populace, which really wants peace, but does not want it at the expense of Italy's needs for expansion.

Mr. Duce's mention of peace accompanied by justice was taken there to mean Italy must have what it has been demanding for months—political and military control of Ethiopia for development of the vast raw material resources of the empire.

Echoes Pope's Words.
If Italy can achieve this peacefully, the authority said, so much the better—otherwise war is necessary.

Here, it was said, entered Mussolini's other phrase, "we shall march straight on."

It was regarded as significant Mussolini's mention of peace and justice echoed virtually the same words of an address of Pope Pius yesterday to the same World War veterans.

Mussolini addressed the young Italians from the balcony of his offices at the Palazzo Venezia, asserting: "Comrades, I know what you are expecting to hear from me. We will march straight on."

"Is that what you want?"
A cry of "yes" welled up from the crowd in response.

To the war veterans, Mr. Duce said: "I hope when you return to your countries, you will preserve an agreeable memory of the Italian people, who want peace provided it is accompanied by justice," Mussolini asserted.

"The people of Rome have received you with great pleasure since you are former soldiers who have demonstrated your courage in battle, because you are Catholics as are all the people of Italy and finally because you are friends of Italy."

War Plans Pressed.
Premier Mussolini continued his address to these few words.

Italy pressed on nevertheless with its military preparations in east Africa, maintaining an air of unceasing indifference toward League of Nations activities at Geneva.

Officials said the government's attitude, now that a five-power committee has been named by the League council to deal with the dispute, was virtually the same as when the council last met to examine the Italo-Ethiopian controversy.

Authorities said Italy was skeptical as to whether anything could be accomplished at Geneva which would

Ethiopia Pushes War Preparation As League Seeks To Avert Conflict

Swedish Instructors Send Families Out of Country; French Officers Confer With Emperor Selassie and Organize Police Force of Only Railroad.

By LAURENCE STALLINGS.
(Copyright, 1935, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc., and Fox Movietone News.)

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Sept. 8. (By Cable)—In the face of new efforts of the League of Nations to avert Italo-Ethiopian hostilities, significance was seen here in the preparations made by Swedish instructors at the Ethiopian artillery school, 30 miles from Addis Ababa, to send their wives and children out of the country.

Another step in anticipation of conflict was a conference of three French army officers with Emperor Haile Selassie, from which the officers departed to organize the police force of the railroad for the protection of foreigners.

Mohammedan merchants lined the streets, cheering as the emperor drove from the Coptic church, where Christian warriors from the hinterland played a battery of tympani outside.

For the first time, foreign observers here see a possibility of a settlement with Italy without resort to arms on the basis of the traditional three-way spheres of influence. The emperor's foreign advisers, headed by the American, Everett Colson, were recalled hurriedly from a lake resort for a conference Saturday night.

Foreigners have been banned from the last three trains, presumably because of troop congestion. The English sikh, imported secretly to save face for the government, are to parade Monday in full regiments.

Continuing rains indicate no possibility of military activity through the period of deliberations by the League's five-power committee. The country still is impassable, except to the most sure-footed mules.

SUTTON WILL JOIN BOND VOTE DRIVE

To Issue Support Appeal
Today; Rallies Will Start Ratification Fight.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta public schools, today is expected to join Ernest J. Brewer, president, and nine other members of the Atlanta Board of Education in supporting the campaign for ratification of the $1,775,000 bond issue on September 15.

Incidentally with the launching of a series of ward rallies in behalf of ratification.

Sutton had planned to actively join the campaign over the week-end, but was confined to his home because of illness. He, however, sent a message that he planned to issue an appeal for support of the bond issue today if his health permitted.

Two ward rallies are planned for today in the interest of the success of the drive to ratify the bonds, which will more than $9,000,000 worth of school and sewer improvements.

Meeting Tonight.
Ernest J. Brewer, president of the Board of Education, who Saturday prepared a resolution for submission to the board meeting Tuesday, calling on every employee of the school system, every friend of the system and Atlantans generally to support the issue, will take an active part in a meeting to be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Capitol View school.

Thirtieth ward citizens will meet at 8 o'clock at the Morningstar school with Jack D. Weinkle and Mrs. W. H. Ward campaign chairman, presiding.

Saving Predicted.
Assistant Chief of Construction William A. Hanel, in charge of sewers, announced yesterday that the city and federal governments will save at least $100,000 in construction costs by carrying on by his department.

Hanel's announcement followed a discussion of the sewerage problem by H. Enloe, bacteriologist and sanitary expert, of New York; M. T. Singleton, of Weidman & Singleton, design engineers; C. R. Enloe, bacteriological chemist, and Hanel, at the mayor's home. Results of the tests which have been conducted here were reviewed and Enloe, who left tonight for the afternoon for New York, asserted he will file a formal recommendation of sewerage disposal here predicated on the tests, which will save at least $100,000 in construction of disposal units.

Enloe is editor of the magazine "Waterworks and Sewerage" and is recognized as a national authority in his field.

Marler Statement.
Mayor Key opened the speaking campaign in behalf of bonds with a radio appeal Saturday night, and yesterday Councilman John T. Marler, seventh ward, issued a statement in which he called on the city fathers to rally to the support of the finest proposition the city ever had.

"I am supporting the bond issue in its entirety and every member of the

BRITISH RUM BOAT SEIZED OFF COAST WITH HEAVY CARGO

$200,000 Worth of Liquor
Confiscated by Guardsmen in Biggest Haul by U. S. Since Prohibition.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Laying a shot across the bow of the British oil schooner "Popocatepetl," coast guardsmen early today seized the boat and three high-speed American launches and confiscated a $200,000 liquor shipment.

Twenty men, officers and crew members of the four ships, were taken under guard to the brig at Cape May air base where they were held for questioning by Commanding Officer R. L. Burke and government agents.

Burke said the contraband liquor seizure is the largest since repeal. It consisted of 5,000 cases of British whiskey, alcohol and assorted brandies.

Shortly after midnight, three coast guard cutters on patrol bore down upon the British schooner which was anchored about 10 miles southeast of Atlantic City. Burke said the American boats, Theresa of Margate, Napahoe of Point Pleasant, and the Dredgelaught were alongside her and cases of whisky had already been transferred.

"The contact launches" 40-foot boats equipped with high-speed motor, started to make a run for shore but were soon overtaken and boarded, Burke said. The "Popocatepetl," he said, made no attempt to flee and no resistance was made by crew members of any boat.

All the ships were brought to the air base and kept under guard. The Dredgelaught was leaking badly and efforts were being made to keep her afloat. The leak was not sustained in the capture, Burke said.

Coast guardsmen stressed the fact that the British boat was anchored inside the 12 mile limit when picked up by the searchlights of the patrol cutters.

The "Popocatepetl" carried a crew of eight. She is a swift craft of about 135 tons and was owned by the Western Transport Co., of New York. Nova Scotia, according to Lloyd's register. The boat is equipped with Diesel engines.

The prisoners were herded onto the government reservation. The regular brig was too small to hold all of them and temporary quarters were made. Customs agents from Philadelphia hurried to the air base to participate in the questioning.

The sacks of expensive liquor were left in the holds of the vessels, which were run in to the air base and put under heavy guard. Coast guardsmen were posted on the decks.

Lieutenant Burke said there have been no formal charges placed against any of those held as yet.

Judge J. N. Worley Passes at Elberton

ELBERTON, Ga., Sept. 8.—Judge Joseph H. Worley, who died at his home here last night, until his retirement some years ago was one of the most prominent lawyers in this section, having served twice as judge of the superior court of the northern circuit, appointed first by Governor Hoke Smith to succeed Judge Horace M. Holden.

He also represented Elberton in the legislature, and it was while chairman of the county board of commissioners that Elberton's new courthouse was built.

He is survived by his wife and three children, Mrs. Arthur McGinty and Arnold Worley, of Elberton, and Carter Worley, of Florida.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock Monday morning.

Three Earth Tremors Felt in California

BRAWLEY, Cal., Sept. 8.—(AP)—A series of moderate earthquakes, not strong enough to cause property damage or injury, were felt today in the Imperial Valley, the rich, irrigated gardening district of southern California lying close to the Mexican border.

The first shock came at about 6:30 a. m., Pacific standard time, and was followed by two more at 9:15 a. m., and another, slightly sharper, at 10:55 a. m.

State Official Describes Shooting; Says Long Tried To Grab Pistol

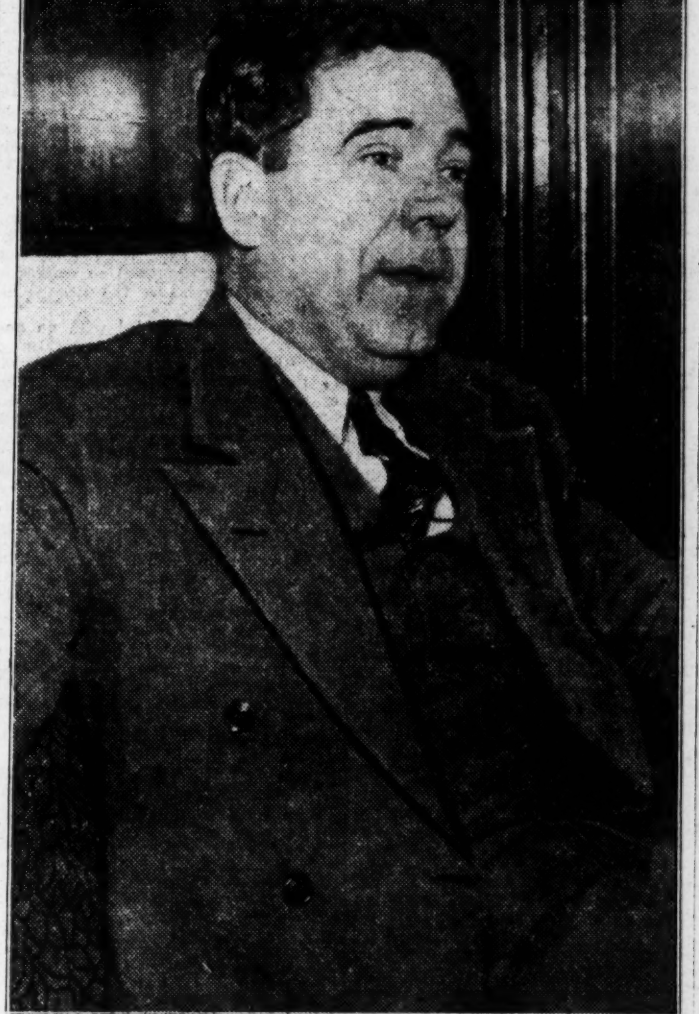

By JAMES O'CONNOR.
Louisiana Public Service Commissioner.

As Told to the United Press.
BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 8.—(UP)—Senator Huey Long collapsed in my arms when he was shot.

The senator had just left the house of representatives chamber to walk 100 yards along the ornate corridors leading to Governor O. K. Allen's office when the assault took place.

Unsuspecting any danger, he was swinging along the hall. Suddenly, the stranger, who was later identified as Dr. Carl A. Weiss, who was standing opposite the entrance to Governor Allen's office, hidden behind a marble pillar, stepped out.

E. L. DOHENEY DIES LONG TOLD SENATE AT WESTERN HOME ABOUT DEATH PLOT

Nationally-Known Oil
Man Passes After Long Illness at Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—(AP)—E. L. Dohoney, nationally-known oil man, died tonight at his home after a long illness.

Dohoney, who wrested one of the world's largest fortunes from the oil fields of California and Mexico, died at 8 p. m. He was 79 years old.

Dohoney wrested one of the country's greatest fortunes from the coastal oil fields of Mexico and the west coast section of the United States.

In Mexico, he reared an industrial empire of such vast proportions that his investments were known as the greatest concentrated holdings of private capital in the world.

Of the corporations through which wealth poured to him, "Mexican Petroleum" was the greatest. That represented his Mexican holdings, developed from the first oil strike in the Tampico fields. From "Mexican Petroleum" radiated concerns controlling refineries, storage plants, pipe lines, railroads, tank steamers, and great distributing stations, far flung along the seaboard in Mexico, Panama, Brazil and the United States.

With Rockefeller, Sinclair and others, Dohoney was one of America's storied oil barons. He laid the foundation for that niche in industrial history when forthright courage, as well as capital, was necessary to forge roads in the face of competition of the booming oil business.

He was well past 60 when the oil scandals of President Harding's administration centered around the group of which he was a member and his name was carried to a sweeping position of attention before the American people. He was indicted in 1924.

Dohoney's life was one of adventure, of picturesque ups and downs. He was born August 10, 1856. Gold was his goal when he started from his birthplace, Fond du Lac, Wis., at the age of 16, to seek his fortune. He had just graduated from high school.

His first idea of the straight road to wealth was in prospecting. But he lost his accumulated capital in an expedition into the Black Hills of South Dakota.

For 20 years he traveled through the west when that region was in the turmoil of adolescence. In 1892 he reached the end of the rainbow—in a recent lot in Los Angeles. He drilled for oil there—and found it.

Long's turbulent political career reached a new "high" in the last year by his vicious attacks upon administration measures which prompted a last-minute plan on the part of house leaders to investigate his alleged "dictatorship."

An unobtrusive change in the annual resolution for house investigation of campaign expenditures paved the way for this new move against the Louisiana senator.

His presence in the resolution did not become known until after his final stand of the session when he blocked an appropriation bill carrying funds for the social security bill and other New Deal agencies by a filibuster until automatic adjournment.

This was one of three filibusters he waged against important measures during the session. One sought to block approval of the NRA extension resolution and the other would have prevented senate approval of the resolution for a joint session to hear President Roosevelt's bonus veto message.

In his hand was a German Luger pistol. The assassin pointed the gun at Long's stomach.

The senator instantly divined an attempt on his life. He grasped the gun with his arm and spun around. He partially deflected the bullet which entered his right side, under his arm, and passed completely through his body, emerging from his left side.

Sensor Long staggered a couple of paces. Instantly, Murphy Rhoden, of the state highway police, sprang on the assailant, his gun drawn. Rhoden and the man slipping to the floor, Rhoden's gun splitting fire.

ASSAILANT, IDENTIFIED AS DOCTOR, KIN OF JUDGE WHO LONG OPPOSED

Long Attacked When Leaving House After Day of Forcing Approval of Dictatorial Legislation, Stumbles From Scene Bleeding From Mouth; Huey Given Transfusion.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Senator Huey Pierce Long was shot and wounded to night by a man Dr. Thomas B. Bird, East Baton Rouge parish coroner said was Dr. A. C. Weiss Jr., of Baton Rouge, who was immediately killed by a sub-machine gun blast by bodyguards.

Long was shot as he walked in a corridor near the governor's office after leaving the house of representatives chamber where he was directing legislation in a special session of the legislature.

He was given a blood transfusion shortly before midnight. Long was perfectly conscious as physicians worked over him. When told by Dr. Arthur Vidrine, superintendent of Charity hospital in New Orleans, that his wound would have to be cleaned, Long said:

"Go ahead and clean it!"
Long's last words before he was shot, just after the house of representatives, in special session, had adjourned until tomorrow, were: "Be here in the morning boys."

The shot from the gun of Dr. C. A. Weiss Jr. almost cut his words short.

Physicians said they were making a check to determine whether the bullet which pierced Long's abdomen was poisoned.

The senator staggered down the stairs to the basement, apparently wounded twice in the abdomen, with blood on his mouth, and was taken to Our Lady of The Lake hospital where he was rushed to an operating room.

Dr. Weiss, Dr. Bird said, was 30 years old and was an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist in Baton Rouge. He was a native of Baton Rouge.

Joe W. Bates, assistant superintendent of the state bureau of identification, who also identified Dr. Weiss as the attacker, said Weiss was a son-in-law of Dr. B. H. Pavy, district judge of Opelousas, whom Long sought to defeat in re-election.

An airplane was chartered to fly Dr. Urban Maes, surgeon attached to the Louisiana State University medical staff, to Baton Rouge for consultation.

Public Service Commissioner James O'Connor Jr. said: "I was standing in the basement of the capitol and saw Senator Long stumbling down the hall. He said to me:

"Jimmie, my boy, I am shot..."
I threw my arms under him and drew a pistol to protect him from anyone else and bolted to several boys of the highway department. Then I picked him up and took him in a car to the hospital."

Bodyguards said Long probably was saved from instant death because Dr. Weiss' automatic, a .32 calibre "out-law" automatic, jammed after the first shot was fired.

The body of Dr. Weiss lay in the corridor for more than an hour as Dr. T. B. Bird, parish coroner, viewed it and had photographs taken of it.

Lieutenant Governor Nor telephoned Mrs. Long from the hospital, and told her to come to Baton Rouge immediately.

Not Unconscious.
Superintendent of the New Orleans charity hospital, said the condition of the senator is not critical.

After communicating with Mrs. Long at her home in New Orleans, Mr. Nor put in a call for Seymour Weiss, one of the senator's political associates, but it was not known what he told Mr. Weiss.

No one is admitted to the operating room where Senator Long was under treatment, but Mr. Nor, in his conversation with Mrs. Long, said the senator was not unconscious.

There was a wild stampede back into the house chamber as the shots rang out and women screamed and men crowded against each other in an effort to see the senator.

Ky. Count Delayed To Notify Coroners

IRVIN S. CORB.
(Copyright, 1935, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Sept. 8.—They had a primary election in Kentucky Saturday, but we won't know the results until fully 24 hours after this is printed because they've got a law down there against counting the vote for at least one day after the election.

Now, allowing time to notify the families of deceased and the coroners.

As a native son, I'll never forget the thrill I had in 1932 when all the rest of the country had reported a party named Hoover as being running that year—and then the first scattering returns came in from Kentucky: Seven lead and 18 wounded.

But I'm afraid the old state is slipping. There were only 750 national guardsmen on duty Saturday in Harlan county, where the mountain boys still have a boyish way of voting with Winchester rifles. And I can remember when a republican governor called out the entire military force of the commonwealth to disperse one lone democrat, Colonel Jack Chan. The colonel wasn't feeling very irritated either—just a trifle above normal.

ATLANTANS' AIRPLANE IN ACCIDENT IN N. C.

The ship with a crowd of country people standing around. I'm going to find out all about it the first thing in the morning."

Lookouts stationed at the Holly Creek CCC camp reported to Captain X. E. Barger, camp commander, that they saw a plane answering the description about 5 o'clock Saturday in flight two miles north and west of the camp.

Dalton Flyer Aided.
B. J. Bandy, Dalton, Ga., helicopter manufacturer, put his own plane into the air yesterday afternoon as low-hanging clouds cut visibility. He was still searching when army headquarters here received word Lieutenant Hugh Dubose, reserve flyer, had sighted the plane.

At 8 o'clock last night Scarborough sent the following message to Candler field, according to field attaché: "Tell Strickland everything o. k. Scarborough."

This was the first word from the pair.
Meanwhile Strickland had temporarily abandoned his end of the hunt because the time had arrived for the air circus at Silver City. The Associated Press reported he put on his exhibition in the best "show must go on" manner regardless of the fear he felt his comrades and his plane were lost somewhere in the fastness of the Blue Ridge.

Captain Boards Runaway Airship In Mid Air, Saves 13 of Crew

Two Men Aboard Russian Semi-Rigid Craft Drop 25 Feet From Guy Ropes, But Chief Climbs Into Gondola, Directs 6-Hour Battle With Elements.

STALINO, Ukraine, Sept. 8.—(AP)—A runaway airship, boarded in mid-air by its captain, was brought safely back to port today after a six-hour struggle against the elements.
Thirteen persons were in the ship, the semi-rigid U. S. S. R. V-2, when it broke loose from its mooring here last night during a storm.
Among them was the 20-year-old helmsman, Vera Achenvald, who stuck to her post throughout the storm, steering the bucking craft to safety under the direction of the skipper.
Two members of the ground crew broke loose at 9 p. m. yesterday. With Captain Ivan Gudaventzeff, they were injured seriously when the ship

Brazil Cotton Crop Continues Climb, Will Top Last Year's Production

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Ministry of Agriculture figures published today showed Brazil's cotton output this year will top last year's. At the same time, business circles expected the trend to continue upward in 1936.

The ministry's figures coincided with the arrival of an article published in the United States by Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, in which he recognized great producing potentialities in Brazil.
"The secretary's views were well-founded," said Alpheus Domingues, cotton expert at the agricultural ministry. "It is no exaggeration to say Brazil can become the world's leading producer of cotton."

Domingues is to leave soon for Washington, D. C., where he will occupy the newly-created post of cotton observer at the Brazilian embassy. The ministry's figures showed a total of 370,000 metric tons of cotton would be produced in Brazil this year, compared with 279,700 in 1934. This seventh ward delegation in council and the Board of Education is doing likewise," Marler asserted.

"It is the finest, most magnificent proposal ever offered Atlanta," is one which we can not afford to turn down—one that must not be turned down.

"We need those school improvements badly. It is estimated that every third citizen of Atlanta has some one close to him in the public schools. They should be interested in better schools and vote to secure the projected $1,000,000 for schools carried in the issue."

"No one really questions that the sewers present an emergent situation, which must be remedied. For several years, Atlanta attempted to enforce sanitary laws against the Washington street market, but the advice of health officials went unheeded. We all know what happened there."

"No less than 12 cases of typhus fever were reported as emanating from there within the last few weeks, and if the city had not finally taken hold, we can not see how far-reaching the outbreak might have become."

False Security.
"We are always lulled by a false sense of security. Medical authorities have warned us until their voices are hoarse that we are courting disaster in not modernizing the sewer system to care for the 16,000,000 gallons of untreated sewage which is being dumped daily into streams in and near Atlanta. We have seen no evidence of typhoid outbreaks to such an extent that they are alarming. Therefore, the danger does not exist for us."

"If a typhoid epidemic should break out, we could not remedy the situation as easily as we can combat typhus. All we have to do to curb typhus is to destroy rats and rat fleas. Typhoid will be caused by sewage filth. It will take months and possibly more than a year to relieve the intolerable conditions caused by the outmoded and inadequate sewer system. We can not afford to wait any longer for our

Vote for Health.
"A vote against the sewers is a vote against health, continued progress and prosperity of the community. A vote against school bonds is a vote against the future citizenship of this community. It is a crime against future generations."

I am supporting the entire bond issue and I want every sober thinking man and woman, every loyal Atlantan to do likewise. We can do nothing less, and we are asked to do nothing more at the moment."

SELASSIE'S ADVISERS
ARE WARY OF SCHEMES

Haile Warned To Keep Iron Front in Face of Peace Plans.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie's counselors urged him today to maintain an iron front in the face of new peace schemes emanating from Geneva which they feared might endanger Ethiopia's independence.

Members of the advisory council, including Everett Andrews Colson, American financial advisor to the emperor, hastened back from vacations to prepare new material to reinforce Ethiopia's case before the League of Nations.

Their return coincided with an announcement by Italian Minister Luigi Vinicio-Gigliucci that he has protested to the Ethiopian foreign minister against a series of arrests and annoyances allegedly suffered by employees of Italian consulates.

The plans of the emperor's "brain trust" to get some rest away from the capital were frustrated as they were flooded with messages concerning Geneva developments.

Protectorate Idea Scorned.
A French proposal that an Italian protectorate be placed over Ethiopia, similar to that of England over Iraq, was rejected flatly by government officials.

They pointed out that Haile Selassie has consistently turned down all suggested solutions of the crisis involving any kind of domination over his empire.

A suggestion that Ethiopia be policed by an international force, as the Saar once was, aroused lively interest, but in the absence of details officials maintained an attitude of reserve.

Some sources suggested that such a formula might be the basis for the solution if it does not give Italy political and economic domination over the empire.

These sources expressed a conviction that if Premier Benito Mussolini were given any kind of supremacy under international auspices, he soon would make Ethiopia an Italian colony.

The newly organized Ethiopian Red Cross Society appealed to the American Red Cross and other benevolent institutions for doctors, medicine and field hospital equipment.

Seek American Aid.
"We appeal to the great heart of the American people for help," the announcement read, asserting that doctors, bandages and comforts for Ethiopian soldiers were woefully lacking.

Vinciguicci's recalling of all Italian consuls from the interior of Ethiopia to Addis Ababa was the supreme topic of conversation throughout this capital.

Some Ethiopians interpreted the minister's action as a prelude to eventual evacuation of all Italians, including the legation, in preparation for a possible war.

Americans and other foreigners, however, believed he recalled the consuls from the interior to safeguard their lives and to prevent any further incidents.

The minister himself told the Associated Press that if war came suddenly, Italians in distant roadless areas of the empire might be marooned and suffer violence as belligerents at the hands of Ethiopian natives.

He expressed a belief it would be much safer and easier to evacuate the consuls from Addis Ababa, where they could make a quick exit by railway to Djibouti, French Somaliland.

Vinciguicci said the series of incidents against which he protested began with an assault August 15 on an Italian diplomatic courier whose assistant he said had not yet been punished.

The minister asserted that the position of all Italians in Ethiopia was dangerous because of the possibility of war, and that all were subject to constant surveillance.

News of the closing of several Italian consulates in Ethiopia gave decided emphasis to an opinion that the critical hour was not far distant, despite government denials that the closing of the consulates in the Ethiopian interior was dictated here.

Troop departures were expected to reach a new peak this week, with thousands of men ready to embark at Naples.

Military activities at that port will come to a climax Thursday with the departure of the Saturnia-trans-Atlantic liner and biggest of Italy's east African transports—with some 4,000 officers and men.

Italian newspapers put much stress on the unity and enthusiasm of the people at this critical period.

The newspapers published today a telegram sent to Mussolini by Carlo Delorico, president of the Association of Wounded Veterans of the World War, informing it that 11,489 members of the organization have volunteered for east African service.

The message said this demonstrated "there are no wounds which can prevent us from following a leader like you."

LEAGUE DETERMINED TO AVERT WARFARE.
By JAMES E. SHARKEY.
GENEVA, Sept. 8.—(AP)—A determination to prevent an Italo-Ethiopian war at all hazards—primarily because such a conflict might plunge Europe into dangerous complications—was the prevailing impulse tonight on the eve of the annual assembly of the League of Nations.

Representatives of more than 50 nations gathered to participate in the session, and it appeared inevitable that the east African crisis would be discussed fully by the general assembly.

This would give many smaller nations the first opportunity to air their views.

Some eight printed pages of the annual report by Joseph A. C. Avenol, secretary-general of the League, were devoted to Italo-Ethiopian affairs, apparently making assembly discussion of the controversy unavoidable.

Italian quarters were stressing more strongly than ever economic necessity as justification for Italian expansion in Ethiopia.

Premier Pierre Laval of France, was generally expected to return from Paris bearing concrete plans for a settlement of the east African controversy.

BUSINESS UPTURN SEEN BY A. F. OF L. LEADERS

Worker Must Share in Increased Earnings, Says Statement.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The best fall business since 1930 was forecast today by the American Federation of Labor.

At a meeting of the federation, in its monthly business survey, told industry that labor must share in increased earnings to make permanent gains.

"After a five-months waiting period, business was started strongly upward again," the survey said.

"With these signs of increased industrial earnings, much depends on the workers making a new drive now for higher income."

A real lagging heavy industries, the survey said, "should mean more jobs where unemployment has been particularly severe."

Early machinery orders were reported up 75 per cent the first half of the year. Auto sales increased by 500,000 cars. Machine tool orders were up 100 per cent. Reports showed the auto industry was spending $100,000,000 on new production equipment, and the steel industry, $130,000,000.

Nevertheless, the federation found that 11,000,000 workers still were unemployed, adding "We cannot expect increasing production to put the unemployed back to work in industry."

Shorter Hours Urged.
"Work hours must be progressively shortened to put the unemployed to work; wages must be raised, every gain made by workers in the months just ahead will safeguard the future."

The depression resulted, the federation said, from insufficient worker income from 1923 to 1929.

"Production was checked by a shortage of worker-buying power. Industrial earnings not paid out in wages, were instead dissipated on the stock market."

Even after NRA gains, the survey found, income of workers in basic industries "was scarcely more than half the 1929 volume."

"To restore these jobs and wage cuts," it concluded, "is America's greatest problem. It is disquieting to find that gains in employment are by no means keeping pace with gains in production as industry recovers."

be acceptable to Italy or which would be effective in averting hostilities.

Basis for Skepticism.
The reasons given for this attitude were three:

1. Italy has no great confidence in the efficacy of the League.

2. Italy insists that the east African controversy is not one with which the League should concern itself.

3. The committee selected to study the problem has, in France and Great Britain, two members with special interests in the issue—a fact regarded here as jeopardizing seriously the usefulness of the body.

Officials emphasized that the League council meeting convened with Italy's plainly intimated disapproval, since Baron Pompeo Aloisi, chief Italian delegate, refrained from voting.

Furthermore, they said, Italy has definitely disassociated itself from any concern over the result of the League deliberations by specifically reserving its freedom of action.

In the light of these pessimistic views, expressed freely in official quarters, and the emphasis placed on an assertion that the world must not be deluded into believing it Duce is "bluffing," informed Italian circles commented the only remaining question appeared to be: When will hostilities begin?

Consulate Closing.

DR. JOHN C. WHITE, 74, WILL BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral Services To Be Held in Church He Helped Build.

Funeral services for Dr. John C. White, Atlanta doctor, churchman and philanthropist, who died Saturday at his residence, at the Wincoff hotel, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at the Clark Street Methodist church, of which he was an active member and a steward.

The Revs. Fred L. Glisson and W. H. Faust will praise the man who had given many thousands of dollars to charitable causes during his 32 years of residence in the city. Among his benevolences were the presentation of a $10,000 property at Lakewood park to the Churches Home for Girls and the gift of $1,000 as the initial donation toward the building fund of the magnificent Clark Street Methodist church edifice.

On the shoulders of Drs. C. A. Rhodes, M. C. Pruitt, J. D. Mangel, John A. Mangel and E. H. Green and Mr. James E. Warren, Dr. White will be borne to his final resting place in West View cemetery.

Members of W. D. Luckie Lodge, F. & A. M., will conduct the services at the graveside.

Dr. White was a member of the state legislature from Fulton county for two terms and of the city council from the seventh ward and members of both groups will attend the services. Brandon-Bond-Condron will be in charge.

SIX ARE INJURED AT CANAL PROJECT

30 Workmen Fall to Ground as Warehouse Roof Collapses.

OCALA, Fla., Sept. 8.—(AP)—A Sunday crowd of several hundred persons looked on today as the roof of a canal camp warehouse crumpled under the weight of about 30 workmen and injured six carpenters.

It was the first accident since construction began on the headquarters camp of the Gulf-Atlantic ship canal project.

Robert Gunn, most severely hurt of the six, received a leg fracture. The others had minor injuries.

Engineers whose offices already have been set up on the camp site, said 200 to 300 men will start clearing a two-mile stretch in Putnam county next week, and excavation probably will start Thursday.

Crews worked under searchlights last night to complete the warehouses. A well-drilling outfit, with pumps and trucks moved in and out of the site delivering lumber for construction of the buildings.

Hundreds of people from Ocala and other nearby towns watched the work during the day. The headquarters site will be called Camp Roosevelt.

REAL GUMP FAMILY

Chester (Not the One in the Arctic) Loses Jacket.

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., Sept. 7.—Park rangers do not make a practice of doubting the credibility of reports brought to them by Yellowstone park visitors, but every once in a while an incident taxes their gullibility.

Such an event occurred to Ranger Robert Beal, of West Thumb station, this week. A young chap rushed up to him at the station to report he had lost a leather jacket at Old Faithful and would the ranger call up and check to see if it could be found.

Ranger Beal said he would and reaching for his "lost and found" repository, he inquired the visitor's name.

"Chester Gump, of Chicago," replied the young man. Whereupon Beal gave him a quizzical look and proceeded to call a halt to what he thought was a practical joke.

"I'm not a funny-paper man," replied Beal, "but I happen to know that Chester Gump is in the Arctic."

"I don't know anything about Chester Gump, of the Arctic," replied the Chicagoan, "but I'm Chester Gump, of 7233 Jackson boulevard, Forest Park, Ill., and I lost a leather jacket at Old Faithful."

Still a bit dubious, Beal resumed the proceedings, and the report was duly sent to Old Faithful.

FRIENDS OF ALFONSO

SILENT ON ANNULMENT

BRUSSELS, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Persons close to former King Alfonso, of Spain, during his visit to the International Exposition here, declined today to confirm or deny reports published in London that Pope Pius had annulled Alfonso's marriage with former Queen Victoria Eugenia.

A member of the Spanish aristocracy here expressed ignorance of an annulment, adding cryptically:

"This is an affair which it were best to leave untouched."

Alfonso, who visited Brussels incognito accompanied by the Marquis de Villalobar and the Duke of Luna, was understood to have gone to Paris by automobile.

MOTORCADE WILL VISIT HISTORIC BATTLE SITE

A motorcade in preparation for the opening of the improved cyclorama will leave from in front of city hall at 3 o'clock this afternoon to visit the route of General Hardee's battle march of July 22, 1864.

The route extends from the Capitol down Capitol avenue to McDonough road and thence up the old Decatur road to the site which was the left flank of Sherman's army, now East Atlanta, extending in the direction of Decatur.

Various military scenes in connection with the battle of Atlanta will be described. The public is invited to join the motorcade, which is expected to end shortly after 5 o'clock.

C. H. FULLER FUNERAL WILL BE HELD TODAY

Final rites for C. H. Fuller, Ben Hill county camp guard who dropped dead Saturday at his home, 1112 Grove street, N. W., will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the North Atlanta Baptist church with the Revs. W. T. Check and George McLarty officiating.

Burial will be in Crossroads cemetery with the West Side Funeral Home in charge.

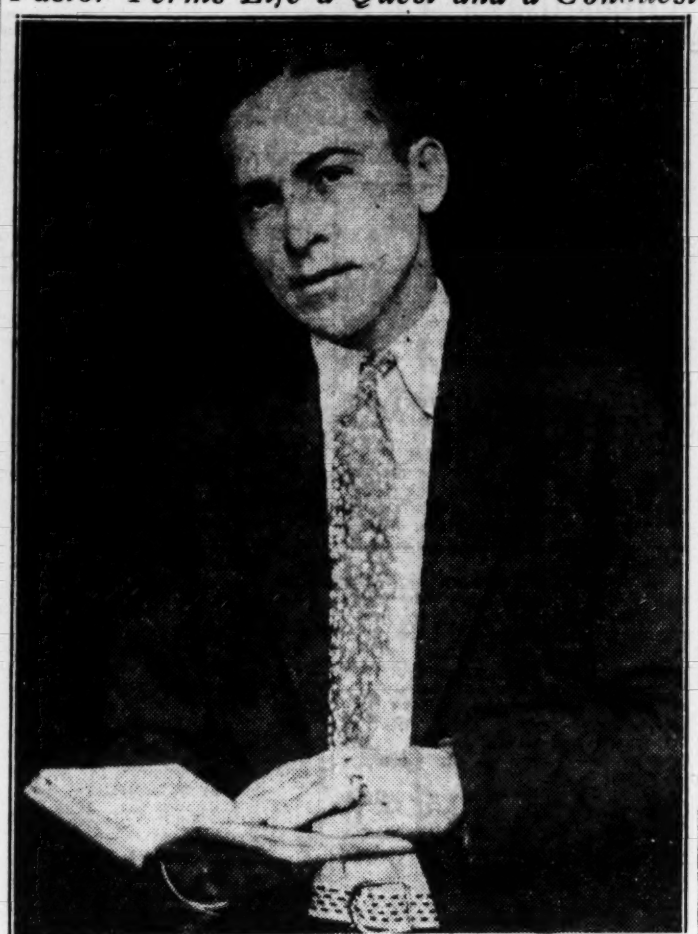

GIRL KILLS SELF OVER VOCAL CAREER FAILURE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 8.—(UP)—Disappointed in a vocal career, Mary Manners, of Plymouth, Ind., entertainer with the Carlos Molina band, took her life today by plunging nine stories from her hotel room after taking poison.

Notes left to her family said she felt she had made "a big mistake" by thinking she ever could be a singer.

Molina said the girl's singing was satisfactory.

Pastor Terms Life a Quest and a Conquest

REV. WILLIAM HOWARD SENTELL.

Forces of Right and Wrong Clash In Human Soul, Rev. Sentell Says

(Editor's Note: The Constitution this morning presents the 34th of a series of features dealing with Atlanta ministers and their services. Other stories and pictures of pastors in their pulpits will be given on succeeding Mondays.)

Life is a battle in which the forces of right and wrong clash on the battlefield of the human soul, the Rev. William Howard Sentell, pastor of the Peachtree Baptist church, said in his sermon yesterday.

He said, in part:

"Life is a quest and a conquest. Man in his seeking and forever searching life finds life to be a battle. The forces of right and wrong forever clash on the battlefield of the human soul. Modern Jaxons in their search for the golden fleece of spiritual life must realize that the slain dragon's teeth may grow into giant foes which must be conquered."

"Moses had been called to the mountain top. God always calls his people to the mountain tops when He has commands and promises to make. The most dismal valley is transformed into a snow-capped mountain when God speaks, and His children hear. Our subject, 'Angels and Hornets,' is found in the 23rd chapter of Exodus. Ours theme is 'Conquest.'"

Promises Accompany Commands.

"God was calling His people to the conquest of Canaan. He knew that enemies were there, promising in that call to send His angel before them and also hornets. If you and I could only understand that God's commands are not grievous but are always accompanied by His precious promises, we would be more eager to take our places as good soldiers of the cross in this universal conflict, the conquest of Canaan."

"Canaan is not always a type of heaven as many have thought. If we are fortunate enough to get to heaven there will be no enemies to drive out; no rivers to cross; no Jerichos to capture; no defeats like at Ai. Fighting and suffering will all be over and 'God shall wipe the tears from our eyes.' Canaan is a type of the human soul which God desires to enter that He may cast out the evil within and possess. There are sin walls about us that must fall if He is to possess Canaan, our souls.

Symbol of Consecration.

"Jordan is not always a type or symbol of death, but it is always a symbol of consecration to God. When you and I have crossed Jordan, we have renounced Egypt and its sin and have turned our faces to God. Jordan is the line of separation, the dividing line. It separates between right and wrong; righteousness and sin. To cross the Jordan of life means a perfect surrender to God and a complete dedication of life to His will in the conquest of human souls. If we are to cross Jordan, there must be no compromise with the enemy."

"As we go forth to battle, God sends the angel of His guidance before us. In times of distress, the angel of His blessing surrounds us and near us. In times of sorrow, the angel of His comfort is ever near his children."

"The hornets also go forth before us to drive out the enemy sin from the Canaan, our souls. How often does God warn us in His word concerning the awful sinfulness and commands us not to touch the unclean things of life."

"Let us therefore welcome the presence of His spirit even as Israel welcomed the presence of 'Angels and Hornets' and lean upon this blessed promise, 'Lo, I am with you.'"

"What things shall happen on the morrow Thou kindly hideest from my gaze; But tell me, in joy and sorrow, Lo, I am with you all the days."

"When round our head the tempest rages, And sink our feet in miry ways Thy voices come floating, down the ages, Lo, I am with you all the days."

"Oh, thou who art our life and meetness, No death shall daunt us or amaze, Hearing those words of power and sweetness, Lo, I am with you all the days."

FAMILY MEETING HELD HERE; 85 ARE PRESENT

The McKown family annual convention held yesterday at Grant park brought members of the family from a number of towns in the south, including Abbeville, S. C.; Hampton, Va.; Macon, Brunswick and New Wood, Ga. More than 85 members attended.

Officers of the family organization elected yesterday for the coming year were: R. C. McKown, president; Mrs. Nora McKown Dodson, vice president, and Mrs. Sara Teague, secretary. The family holds its annual reunion on the second Sunday of September.

Rubber Was a Brazilian Bubble, But Henry Ford Is Rebuilding It

Modern Plantation Soon Will Be Producing If Plans Now Under Way Are Carried to Fruition, Constitution Correspondent Finds.

This is the fifteenth in the series of South American travel articles written for readers of The Constitution by the Rev. H. E. Russell, of McDonough, Ga.—Editor's Note.

BELEM, Para, Brazil, August 22. In the romantic word "rubber" is found the commercial history of this colossal river basin. Manaus, Para, and other towns of importance in this region reflect, through their feeble struggle to regain their lost prestige, the glory that was theirs when rubber boomed.

For years Brazil had a monopoly of the world's rubber supply and in her effort to retain the control of this commodity passed laws prohibiting the exportation of rubber seeds or seedlings. These laws notwithstanding, rubber trees were carried to Europe and from there to the far east, where huge plantations were planted by the Dutch and English. Because plantation rubber was less expensive to produce, due to accessibility, than the jungle-grown variety, it undersold the Amazon rubber and the Brazilian bubble of anticipated grandeur popped. The fragments of this bubble are still seen in the buildings erected in the boom days that far exceed contemporary needs.

Finest, But Too Costly.
The British and Dutch plantations of the orient shifted the monopoly into their hands. Para rubber remained the finest obtainable, but being more expensive it had to give place to the cheaper product from the east.

By far the largest consumer of the world's rubber supply is the automobile industry of the United States. The price of rubber soared in the hands of the European manipulators and their monopoly became a menace to the American manufacturers to whom rubber is indispensable.

Henry Ford has taken the most steps toward amelioration of this adverse situation. Reasoning that the best rubber was to be found in its native home, which is the Amazon valley, and that it can be produced cheaper under cultivation than by gathering it from the widely scattered native growth, he decided that the best and cheapest rubber could be grown here.

Working from this premise he ventured in 1928 upon an enormous undertaking on a tributary of the Amazon. On the Tapajoz river, near the town of Santarem, he secured from the Brazilian government a concession of some 3,000,000 acres. On this land Mr. Ford has built a modern town in the jungle.

Paradise, as this town is known by this name, has a population of some 2,000 people, employed in this enterprise. Private houses with water, lights, iron stoves and gardens are supplied the laborers at low rentals. Single men are housed in dormitories. A school has been established and the little city boasts an excellent hospital.

Largest Sawmill.

The largest sawmill in South America was built here to use the timber cut in clearing the land for this town. This tremendous plant has a capacity of 75,000 feet per day. However, very little lumber business is going on at the present time. So far, 12,000 acres have been cleared and planted and the actual production of rubber is expected in a year or so.

An accurate estimate places Mr. Ford's present investment at over $8,000,000. Although the enterprise has not begun to pay, it has served to lessen the menace that hovers over the world's rubber supply. The main office of the "Ford Industrial do Brasil," is located in Belem, Para.

Russian scientists plan to extract Vitamin A from carrots and Vitamin D from dried yeast.

The momentum of a 3,000-pound auto traveling 30 miles an hour is 132,000 units.

TRACKSTAR. (left) James Bausch, Olympic Decathlon Champion, reports: "Camels are so mild they don't get my wind or cut down my speed and endurance. And Camel is a better-tasting cigarette... always rich, smooth, and mellow. Camels must be made from a choice blend of more expensive tobaccos."

SLUGGER. (right) Lou Gehrig, famous "Iron Man" of the N. Y. Yankees, says: "For steady smoking I prefer Camels. I like their mildness. I like their flavor. OLYMPIC SWIMMER. (right) "One of my rules in smoking is always to choose a Camel," says Josephine McKim. "Camels are mild. I can smoke them all I want, and they never bother my wind or jangle my nerves. And, after a race, a Camel is just the thing to chase away that 'let-down' feeling."

CHAMPION SWIMMER. (left) Buster Crabbe, Olympic Champion, says: "I'm a consistent Camel smoker—have smoked Camels for years. I've found that Camels are so mild they never get your wind, never jangle your nerves or cut your endurance. And Camel flavor is always so rich and smooth."

JANE FAUNTZ, Olympic Swimming and Diving Star. "Being both a swimmer and a diver," says Miss Fauntz, "I have to keep in perfect 'condition.' Since I started smoking, I have always smoked Camels. Camels are mild and made from naturally fine tobaccos. They do not get my wind or jangle my nerves. And as for taste—Camels have a most delightful and appealing flavor. They are so soothing and gentle to the throat."

STAR WOMAN GOLFER. (right) "There's a delicacy in Camels that appeals to women," says Helen Hicks. "Camels are so mild they do not affect my mind. TENNIS ACE. (left) Big Bill Tilden reports: "Playing hard, competitive tennis day after day, I've got to keep in tiptop 'condition.' That's why I smoke Camels—the mild cigarette. Camels don't get my wind, don't slow me up in hard-fought matches, and never upset my nerves or spoil my timing."

NEIGHBOR ROOSEVELT TALKS WITH VILLAGERS

President Assumes Role as Town Squire in Quiet Hyde Park Sunday.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 8.—(AP)—In an informal chat with neighbors, President Roosevelt as town squire today counseled reductions in costs of government and beautification of the highways.

His talk to folks gathered about the family cottage picnic ground after morning church service was strictly devoted to community problems of Hyde Park and the gathering developed into a general discussion with the Rev. Frank R. Wilson, the rector of St. James Episcopal church, one of the principal interfaith groups.

Suggesting that national politics should not be involved in town problems, Mr. Roosevelt proposed that both sides in the local election this fall present their budgets and say to the voters that if good roads are not provided to vote them out next time. The occasion was a reunion with the home town people. The guests were members of the town of Hyde Park Improvement Association.

The afternoon get-together was regarded as strictly private. A reporter from one of the Poughkeepsie papers reported the affair to Washington newspapers.

Constitution Day Program Planned By Atlanta Veterans, Civic Groups

Plans are rapidly being completed here for an impressive celebration of Constitution Day on September 17. Governor Talmadge has issued a proclamation designating the day, and calling for state-wide ceremonies. A highlight of the observance will be a state-wide patriotic dinner to be held under the sponsorship of the Community Americanism Committee. At this affair Robert C. Alston, civic leader and noted Georgia attorney, will be the principal speaker. Announcement of Alston's attendance was made by Charles William Bernhardt, chairman, and A. L. Henson, secretary of the committee.

Quincy Melton, of Griffin, publisher and national vice commander of the American Legion, also will speak. The state-wide dinner is being sponsored by the American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, United Spanish War Veterans, the Elks, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Old Guard and the Georgia Mayors' Association.

The Civilian Club at its weekly luncheon meeting on that day will also celebrate the occasion. Justice S. Price Gilder, of the Georgia supreme court, will be the principal speaker. Former Governor John M. Slaton will speak before the meeting.

RELIEF CHECK RACKET HALTED BY MERCHANTS

Many Were Victimized by Stolen Check Forgeries;
Publicity Credited.

A state-wide racket in forged FERA checks has been reduced sharply by the co-operative efforts of small merchants throughout Georgia. It was announced yesterday by George H. Brodnax, operative in charge of secret service in Atlanta.

Refusal of merchants to honor relief checks unless the persons who present them are known to be the rightful payees has nipped the racket which had been assuming such proportions that federal court calendars this fall were threatened with being clogged by these cases.

The story published in The Atlanta Constitution, August 20, warning merchants against honoring FERA checks from unknown persons, has practically stopped all forgeries of this type," said Mr. Brodnax yesterday.

"Since the publication of the story, I have had scores of comments from persons who did not know that the merchant who cashes the check loses the money if forgery is proved. The government accepts no responsibility for forgeries and the loss must be accepted by the person who pays out the cash to the wrong person."

"The best way to stop this racket is to nip it at the source where the check is cashed and this is being done. If merchants will continue to be careful about the checks they cash, we will stop this business completely by making it unprofitable."

Thefts of checks from persons to whom they belong had developed into a thriving type of crime. More than a dozen persons have been arrested for thefts and forgeries and are now awaiting trial before federal courts in Georgia.

ROME THEATER OPENS; OUTING, FESTIVAL HELD

Atlantan Wins Tournament;
Show Boat Performance
Features Entertainment.

ROME, Ga., Sept. 8.—Opening of the new $75,000 Gordon theater here yesterday was celebrated today with an outing and festival at the Coosa Country Club. More than 500 persons took part.

Roy Petty, vice president of the Whitaker Paper Company, of Atlanta, won the blind bogey golf tournament. He was awarded a silver trophy presented by O. C. Lam, president and general manager of the Lam Amusement Company and operator of the Gordon theater.

J. Bailey Gordon, owner of the theater, awarded a trophy to Harry Browne of United Artists, Atlanta, for second place. J. C. Wise's trophy for third went to Colonel T. E. Orr, of Abbeville.

Miss Pat Rogers and Miss Vera Hathorne, of National Screen Service, Atlanta, were first and second in the ladies' bridge tournament. Mrs. J. C. Crockett, Affiliated Producers, Atlanta, was third, and Mrs. Hugh Given, Rome, fourth. All received silver trophies.

A barbecue dinner and show boat performance, augmented by the vaudeville acts from the Gordon, were the features of the night entertainment. Local talent also took part in the program, which interspersed the dancing.

Among Atlantans present were A. C. Bromberg, of Republic Pictures; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Morgan, Paramount Pictures; Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Lyons, of R-K-O; Clarence Eisenman, United Artists; Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Ochs, Vitagraph, Inc.; Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Wilson, Fox Films; J. S. Brown, National Theater Supply; Charlie Lester, National Screen Service; N. E. Savini, Savina, Inc.; K. E. McCormack, Amity Pictures; J. C. Crockett, Affiliated Pictures; E. E. Whitaker, A. C. Cowles, Mr. Metzger and Mr. Whitman, of Lucas & Jenkins; Ike Katz, Paragon Pictures; Riley Davis, theatrical printing; A. Fiore, electric research products; J. B. Demester, RCA; J. S. Laird, Columbia; Paul Stephens and Jim Young, Universal; A. B. Abernethy and A. J. Kaiser, Theaters Service Company, and Sam Berry, of Wil-Kin Theater Supply Company.

G. O. P. Urged To Prepare For Chicken in Every Pot

PORT DEPOSIT, Md., Sept. 8.—(AP)—A pledge to show just how to put "a chicken in every pot" was proposed for the next republican national platform today by former Senator Joseph I. France.

It was a plank in a trial platform suggested by the Maryland republican "for" consideration, approval or disapproval of all candidates for the presidency or vice president in 1936.

It would be phrased:

"Americanism, not socialism, can put 'a chicken in every pot.' We shall show you the way."

At this point, France would hurl a shaft in the direction of an old intraparty foe of his, former President Hoover, with the assertion:

"Both the Hoover and Roosevelt administrations are responsible for the asinine attempt by man to control God, mother nature and human nature, which only Divine Providence can accomplish."

HEAD OF NAZI LAWYERS ASSAILS 'FLAG' JUDGE

Terming Brodsky a Jew, He Asks 'Pure Americans' To Do Something.

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Hans Frank, minister of justice and president of the Academy of Law, called Magistrate Louis B. Brodsky, of New York, who freed five of the alleged Bremen rioters last week, a "Jew" and appealed to "pure Americans" to do something about the matter, in a statement today.

The statement was made at a meeting of the Judges and Lawyers' Association. He called the association together soon after hearing of the verdict.

In freeing the five asserted rioters who were accused of tearing down the Nazi flag from the liner Bremen while it was docked in New York, Magistrate Brodsky referred to what he said was a belief by some of the men was a "flag of piracy."

"Judge Brodsky is a Jew," said Frank. "A Jew can neither insult our flag nor our national socialist Germany. But that a Jew in the highly cultured United States can abuse the honor and cloak of a judge and give vent to the petty hate of his race against the national socialist German people, is above all a highly regrettable event."

AUTHORITIES ABSOLVED OF HURRICANE DEATHS

10,000 in Miami, Meanwhile Hear Roosevelt Message at Mass Rites.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 8.—(AP)—More than 10,000 persons, massed in Bayfront park for a memorial service to the war veterans and others who died in the Florida hurricane, heard President Roosevelt's message of sorrow tonight.

The message, read by Colonel George E. Ijams, assistant administrator of veterans' affairs, follows:

"I wish I might be present to express my profound grief and deep sense of loss because of the tragic death of these defenders of the nation. Will you be good enough to convey my condolences to the families of those gallant men."

Earlier tonight, Aubrey Williams, assistant administrator for the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, had reported to President Roosevelt the heavy storm casualty list resulted from an "act of God" and was not directly blamable to any human element.

The 14-page document, labeled as a preliminary report, came after a "thorough and careful inquiry within the available time at our disposal," Williams said.

He added he is of the opinion future inquiry will not place the responsibility for the disaster on any human factors. The report was signed by both Williams and Ijams.

The simple memorial service was accompanied by all the military honors the nation's various services could offer.

Eighty-two caaskets, all bearing storm dead, filled five long trenches in Woodlawn cemetery here, as memorial services were held in Bayfront park tonight.

Thirty more caaskets lay nearby, most of them claimed by relatives, and will be sent away.

Conrad Van Hynning, FERA director, who flew over the devastated area today, said the gruesome work of cremating the bodies of those remaining in the section which bore the brunt of the storm would continue. It will require several days to search all the gnarled mangrove undergrowth on the lower keys, he said.

There has not been—and Red Cross officials said there "probably never will be"—an accurate count of those who died in the storm. Dead and missing numbered in the vicinity of 500, with Red Cross figures showing 446 dead, missing or unaccounted for.

"There still are a number of bodies undoubtedly in the water and swamp areas," Van Hynning said. The cremations were going forward at Snake Creek, Islamorada and two points south of there.

FEDERAL TAXES GAIN 23 PER CENT IN YEAR

Virtually All Classes of Collections Show Increase Over Last Period.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(UP)—A 23 per cent gain in federal tax collections in the fiscal year ended June 30, because of improved business and new tax levies, was reported tonight by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Total tax collections rose to $3,299,435,372 from $2,672,239,196 in the preceding 12 months. Virtually all classes of tax collections showed large gains over the previous year with income taxes supplying nearly a third of the collections.

Those brought in $1,099,230,358, against $817,025,340 last year; processing taxes accounted for $526,222,358, against $371,422,886; tobacco, $450,178,025, against $425,168,807; and beer $215,563,897, against $89,051,747.

In addition to the heavy tax collections the government during the last fiscal year assessed taxpayers $332,105,910 for underpayment of taxes, compared with assessments of $328,188,721 in the previous fiscal year. Citizens of every state except Nevada and New Hampshire paid more federal taxes than in the preceding year. New York state led all others with total taxes of $672,473,094, a gain of 18 per cent over the previous year.

Face Was Oily and Pimples Were All Over It. Relieved by Cuticura.

"My face was oily and then pimples came all over it. They were in blotches around my eyes, and were large and red. My face itched and I would scratch, and this would irritate the skin and leave dark spots. I suffered for about four years. Then I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It improved my skin so that I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment, and after using them my skin became as clear as before." (Signed) Miss Edna Goode, R. 3, Box 64, Macon, N. ELECTRIC CONSUMERS SAVE SIXTY MILLIONS

Federal Power Commission Reports Savings Made Through Rate Reduction.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—An annual saving of $60,000,000 to customers of private and municipal electric utilities in reduced rates was reported today by the Federal Power Commission.

The estimate includes savings of $47,460,618 through reductions made by 12 companies since July 1 would add $13,000,000 to the total.

Basil Manly, vice chairman in charge of the commission's electric rate survey, explained that announcements by 12 companies since July 1 would add $13,000,000 to the total. The reductions in the last fiscal year, when the survey was begun, brought a saving of $45,290,447 to customers of private utilities and $2,000,141 to those served by municipal plants.

The figures were based on reports from 1,325 of the 3,200 utilities of the nation, covering more than 90 per cent of the total electric energy sold. Of the 1,010 reporting private companies, 480 cut rates, compared to 270 of the 915 municipal plants. The reductions averaged 3.5 per cent, based on 1933 revenues—5.86 per cent by municipal and 3.45 per cent by private companies.

Middle Atlantic states led with reductions of $15,105,391; east north central, $8,907,366; south Atlantic, $6,487,388; New England, $5,704,332; west south central, $3,165,555; Pacific, $2,740,294; west north central, $2,550,902; east south central, $1,598,965; and Mountain, $828,453.

ATLANTA CHILDREN GET PHOTOGRAPHS

National Contest Now in Progress; Rich's Studio Is Participating.

Many beautiful children have posed recently for their photographs at Rich's. One of the reasons is the fact that the fourth children's national photograph contest is now in progress and any child under 14 years who has a sitting is automatically entered in the national contest and thereby given an opportunity to win one of the 325 cash prizes which amount to more than $2,000.

However, store officials believe, an even more important reason for the numerous child photographs which have been taken recently by Rich's is that the contest brings to the mind of the parents the fact that only in photography can the child be preserved forever as he or she now is.

"Of course the added chance of winning a substantial prize is attractive," store officials declared, "but the contest serves to bring to the mind of the parents the value of photographs taken now as treasures of future years."

Emphasis was placed on the fact that prizes are awarded for the personality and character expressed in the photograph and not merely for beauty of the child.

The national contest will close Saturday and store officials urged that desired photographs be arranged for promptly of time to avoid a last-minute rush.

"The national prizes are valuable, but more valuable in future years will be the portrait of the child as he appears today," officials of Rich's declared.

NEW BISHOP OF BERLIN HEARD IN FIRST SPEECH

Catholics Favor Union of State and People Under God, He Asserts.

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The Catholic church favors union of the state and the people, Bishop Konrad Preysing said today, referring to the German church controversy, in a pastoral letter read in all churches of the Berlin diocese. The new bishop of Berlin, however, avoided any direct reference to the Nazi ideal of absolute power vested in Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler. It was his first sermon at Saint Hedwig's cathedral, which the pastoral letter celebrated.

"We also want union between the state and the people," the letter said after drawing attention to a "menace" hanging over the church, "but under God's leadership."

"We accept the rulership only of God, and God's word is 'I am the ruler, thy God. Thou shalt have no other God but me.'"

The bishop's program for Berlin was: "God is all, God is in every deed, God is Father in heaven and on earth, and to Him alone must be praise."

Worshippers filled the cathedral to hear the bishop, who was appointed recently to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Bishop Nicholas Bares. Many were unable to gain admittance.

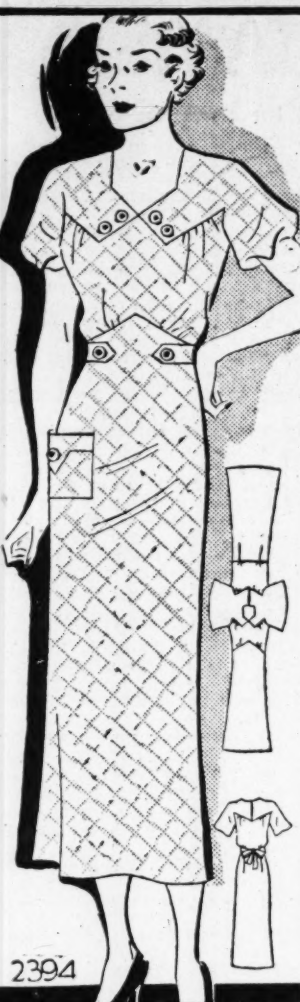

Later, the Catholics gave their new bishop a popular reception at the Sportsplatz.

KENTUCKY'S COLONELS
ELECT LEE PRESIDENT

Hubert F. Lee, Atlanta, editor of Dixie Business, was elected president of the Tennessee Order of Colonels, in Knoxville, Tenn., last week. Lee was recently commissioned a colonel on the staff of Governor Ruby Laffoon, of Kentucky, and conceived the idea of giving a "mint julep" party to all the Kentucky colonels of the section.

The "mint julep" party idea met with such a hearty reception that it was decided to organize the "Tennessee Order of Colonels."

Unwilling to cash the Ace of hearts and surrender all hope of defeating the contract, South, excited with a low diamond, on which West discarded a heart. This unwillingness to give the declarer four-odd resulted in his making five. After cashing the King of clubs, dummy's last diamond was trumped to enable declarer to return to his hand, and four rounds of spades, on which dummy's three hearts and one low club were discarded, gave South cause for regrets. Knowing declarer had marked all the high cards in his hand from his original no-trump bid and that he held the Ace of hearts and blanked the Queen of clubs declarer would undoubtedly go up with the club Ace and win the last trick with dummy's Jack. South threw the Ace of hearts. He hoped, of course, North would hold the vital Jack, a hope speedily dashed as West cashed that card and dummy's Ace of clubs for five odd.

The nurse was busily folding a fresh supply of diapers. Eleanor looked on with eager eyes. "Do show me what you are doing so I can copy it. Goodness knows I am going to be doing a lot of that in the next few months." "That's right, you are. One baby takes enough diapers, but when there are twins, well you can judge for yourself."

"I am using some of the newer types of diapers. We don't recommend, and by 'we' I mean the hospital, the older style materials. They are bulky at the start and grow thinner with frequent washing."

Being bulky they make heavy hems that may ridge themselves right into the baby's soft skin.

The new materials are softer and more absorbent by actual tests. And one company has finally perfected a hemless and selvageless edge. It is pinked or cut into tiny pointed scallops.

Culbertson on Contract

AN UNSOUND NOTRUMP.

The only time it is correct to suppress a hiddable suit is with a 4-3-3 distribution and from four to five honor-tricks, in which case a one no-trump bid is proper. It is important to show the barren distributional possibilities of such a hand, but the original no-trump bid is preferred to showing the suit only for that reason.

In the hand given below, South disregarded the distributional possibilities of his hand and a sound hiddable major suit in order to show the approximate high card strength by a bid of one no-trump. This resulted disastrously because North had no guide for his opening lead and failed to make the one which would have set West's ambitious contract.

Pass

1—A sound double. In view of North's pass, East might have doubled with a slightly weaker hand.

2—West could not consider leaving the double in, despite the fact he had the opening lead, since he held no re-entry for his long suit. Realizing that a mere talk-out would indicate extreme weakness and that his original pass must have limited the strength of his hand, as did his failure to leave the double in—West correctly bid three spades.

3—Of course, West could not consider playing no-trump with no entries.

The Play.

If South had opened the bidding with one heart, a heart lead would have automatically defeated the contract. With nothing to guide him but South's original no-trump call, however, North opened the fourth best diamond. East played the deuce, which card incidentally marked North for a fourth best lead and West, therefore, with two cards in the suit. Accordingly, South, hoping that North may have had both the Queen and Jack of diamonds, finessed the nine, which West won with the Jack. Declarer led a low spade to dummy's King and South won the Ace, exiting with a second round of spades. West took the Queen and returned the six of diamonds, finessing dummy's ten, which South perceived won with the Ace.

Unwilling to cash the Ace of hearts and surrender all hope of defeating the contract, South exited with a low diamond, on which West discarded a heart. This unwillingness to give the declarer four-odd resulted in his making five. After cashing the King of clubs, dummy's last diamond was trumped to enable declarer to return to his hand, and four rounds of spades, on which dummy's three hearts and one low club were discarded, gave South cause for regrets. Knowing declarer had marked all the high cards in his hand from his original no-trump bid and that he held the Ace of hearts and blanked the Queen of clubs declarer would undoubtedly go up with the club Ace and win the last trick with dummy's Jack. Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

A young miss is frightened at some signs she sees in her fiancé. He comes twice a week and they just sit and talk. When she suggests that they go to the movies or take a spin in the car he offers ready excuses. At first she was flattered by what she thought was his passion for conversation with her; then she began to suspect that his passion was for saving his cash. She could laugh about it in the beginning. Later she became irritated with him and now she is in a constant stew. She wonders if she can break him of this habit. If she is convinced she cannot, she is going to break her engagement.

A girl can't break a man of stinging, for stinging is something deeper than mere habit. It is the outcropping of a mean and narrow spirit. Not even falling in love will make a stingy man spend his money but it will make him cagey in his efforts to cover up the tracks that lead to his ugly secret. He won't spend but he will offer the most rational excuses for refusal to spend; and he is so adroit that it takes a girl a long time to get on to him.

He falls on the box of candy the other beaux bring in and laughs heartily at the poor boob who tries to buy a girl's affection. He doesn't send the corsage; he tells her he thought of buying flowers as he passed the florist but remembered that she had plenty of blossoms in her own garden. He tosses her a book with his name written on the fly-leaf and urges her to take her time about reading it as he is in no hurry to get at it. He has dinner with the family and comments that there is no comparison between home cooking and hotel and restaurant food. If she suggests a ride, he's too tired to drive and much prefers to sit and talk. If she suggests a show he replies that no entertainment is so pleasant as her chatter.

None of these things make any particular difference to her at the time. She rides in the family car, goes to the movies with other friends, sits down to food bought by father, reads magazines and papers that lie around, spends her allowance for foolishness and charges her clothes to the family account. What the boy-friend doesn't put up, father does.

She has always had what she needed and wanted and hasn't the remotest idea what it has cost her parents to supply these things. She cannot visualize what it will mean to be dependent upon a stingy husband, to have to ask him for everything and do without if he won't come across. Yet if she marries him she is destined to learn and to her sorrow.

She can pretty well count on a tussling match every time the question of money is mentioned. Beginning Monday morning and ending Saturday night it will come up continuously. When she touches her husband for a dollar she will touch a vital nerve and set it quivering. A request for a fiver will throw him into hard fits. Consequently she must wear cheap clothes and not have many of them. She must furnish her house with shoddy furniture and not much of it. She must account to the miser for every cent she spends, even if it is her own money that papa passed out to her in pity. The husband will walk up against her the stamps she puts on her letters, expect her to undress in the dark to save electricity and to wear her coat to save fuel. He will practice, and demand that she practice, more niggardly tricks than she ever dreamed of. He will get worse as he gets older.

What the boy-friend doesn't put up, father does.

She has always had what she needed and wanted and hasn't the remotest idea what it has cost her parents to supply these things. She cannot visualize what it will mean to be dependent upon a stingy husband, to have to ask him for everything and do without if he won't come across. Yet if she marries him she is destined to learn and to her sorrow.

She can pretty well count on a tussling match every time the question of money is mentioned. Beginning Monday morning and ending Saturday night it will come up continuously. When she touches her husband for a dollar she will touch a vital nerve and set it quivering. A request for a fiver will throw him into hard fits. Consequently she must wear cheap clothes and not have many of them. She must furnish her house with shoddy furniture and not much of it. She must account to the miser for every cent she spends, even if it is her own money that papa passed out to her in pity. The husband will walk up against her the stamps she puts on her letters, expect her to undress in the dark to save electricity and to wear her coat to save fuel. He will practice, and demand that she practice, more niggardly tricks than she ever dreamed of. He will get worse as he gets older.

The fiancé who shies at buying two tickets and balks at using a gallon of gas for a joy-ride, offering sham excuses, won't feel the necessity for hiding his miserliness once he is married. The first romantic desire to please his lady-love will soon be dissolved in the stronger passion to save a dime. The stimulation of romantic love will not survive the constant assaults his wife makes on his purse.

Old Scrooge, the best known miser of fiction, stands out as being the most contemptible character Dickens ever drew. The girl who is thinking of marrying a stingy man should familiarize herself with the classic story of Scrooge. If this doesn't stop her dead in her tracks, she deserves what she shall surely get: life sentence to Jimmy and pick her husband's pockets for the necessities of life and to do without all the little luxuries and comforts that delight the heart of a wife.

Stinginess is not a bad trait that one falls into, a habit that one may break. Stinginess is the outward expression of a mean, narrow soul. It is the worst brand of selfishness, an incurable disease of the spirit.

TEMPERATURE SHOOTS TO 92; HEAT FORESEEN

Yesterday was hot—92 degrees hot—in the unofficial Candler field station reading at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. And today probably will see little change in the temperature.

The forecast is for probable clouds, replacing the smiling skies of the past few days, "with little change in temperature," unless it goes up, the forecaster added unofficially. Yesterday's low of 63 degrees was registered at 5 o'clock in the morning. A heat haze, the observers reported, cut visibility down to eight miles, but Sunday fliers found an unlimited ceiling at their disposal.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

"And then we tried to check the story in this thing you've just read. The Cairo police insist that angle of the story is nonsense, and the authorities at Oxford scoff at the idea that anyone answering Wells' description was a student there. . . . Which leaves us with just two established facts: the two books mentioned as being the work of Wells, 'The Police Are Puppets' and 'The Strange Case of Dr. Chezelee,' were published in London at about the time this diary thing says that Wells was there—and the identity of the author was never discovered."

Mollie found Carl waiting at the office. "He said Senator Runbreaker had received a ransom note," said "Fifty thousand smackers," said Carl. "The note said they would send him instructions as to where, when and how in the next few days. . . . What do you think about it, Mollie?" "Me?" asked Mollie, shrugging. "I'm like Ann. I don't think any more, but I can't quite get it into my head that Selma was kidnapped."

"And I can't, either," Carl agreed. "Personally, I think the senator is off his nut."

As Mollie told Bill when he came unexpectedly to the apartment Wednesday evening things were popping. Senator Runbreaker had received a second note raising the ransom to $75,000 and advising that he would receive specific instructions before the end of the week.

Carl, who had been on the go night and day since Selma's disappearance, had finally collapsed and been rushed to a hospital suffering from what was diagnosed as a form of epilepsy.

And Bill himself and brought the news concerning the now famous case of the two pine boxes.

"I've never before run into a case with so many apparent contradictions," Mollie's friend at police headquarters told her. "To date we've pushed the investigation in two directions, first, to trace Wells' movements before he came to Washington. In this we have completely failed."

"The officer shared his feeling in this regard," he said, "he suddenly decided at that point to kill himself and thereby throw suspicion on the senator and his son; or—" he paused—"or the whole thing is a forgery and was ended as it was to make us conclude what I have just said."

Mollie said after a moment, "If that last sentence had been omitted, I could have believed Fuhrman was the author of all the rest. . . . But when I received the call saying Fuhrman had been drowned in the reflecting pool, he was standing directly behind me and therefore could not have made the call himself."

The two boxes, it seemed, had been delivered to the Capitol some time around the middle of December. Tacked to the top of each was a neatly printed card reading:

Very Confidential!

The Exhibits Contained Herein For Use by the Munitions Investigating Committee.

To Be Kept on the Floor of the House of Representatives Until Congress Convenes

When the Speaker of the House Will Have Them Delivered to the Chairman of the Committee.

A member of the Capitol police had opened one of the boxes and found it filled with large, empty brass shells. The boxes were then placed in the center aisle of the house of representatives.

As Bill had got the story, the boxes had remained on the floor of the house until the day before congress was to convene when they were removed to an ante-room. There they had been forgotten and until the day before had an attendant come across them by accident and notified the speaker.

Suspecting a practical joke, the speaker had them opened. One box contained empty brass shells and weighed approximately 250 pounds; the other was thickly lined with absorbent cotton and under a loose layer the cotton was stained over a space of about two feet and was bedded down into a mould that suggested the outline of a human body.

The Capitol police recalled the discovery of Deane Runbreaker's body in the speaker's chair and notified police headquarters. A truck driver and his helper told detectives that they had taken the boxes from a plane and were given to understand they had just been flown down from Boston by Lee Monday. The trucking company surrendered the letter which had served as their order to do the hauling.

The letter was on stationery of the Senate Military Affairs committee and bore, as signature, the name of Senator Runbreaker.

Sickened by the thought that Lee may have brought Deane Runbreaker, dead, from Boston, Mollie said, "They'll want to question Lee now, of course."

Naturally," said Bill. They've already wired and got a reply. He promised to land at the airport not later than Saturday evening."

Mollie groaned. "Poor Ann! I suppose we ought to let her know Lee's coming ahead of schedule."

"For what?" Bill demanded. "She's coming back from Elmville Sunday, anyway. Let her alone. She needn't know anything of this. The police ought to be through with Lee before she blows in." He got up and took a turn around the room. "Have you ever stopped to think how much unpleasantness we've had crammed into our lives these last six months, Mollie?"

A sad little smile grew on Mollie's lips. "I'm afraid I've thought of little else. It all began the night Ann and Rita came. Odd how we've changed since then. We're not the same people. You less than any of us. All the fun's gone out of you, Bill."

He nodded, gravely. Suddenly his eyes sought hers. "Look here, Mollie, you're not holding anything against me?"

Her quiet smile answered that before she spoke. "Because you thought you were in love with me—and then discovered you were not. . . . She shook her head very slowly. "Think what a tragedy it would have been if you hadn't realized it in time. That's one reason I'll always be eternally grateful to Ann."

Bill stared. "I don't get it."

"About Ann? Don't pretend with me, Bill. I think I knew you were in love with Ann before you realized it yourself. If I've any regret at all, it is that Ann didn't fall in love with you. . . . I think she would have if you'd even given her half a chance."

Lee's telegram, relayed by Mollie, saying that he had been called to Washington to attend a "hearing" and would probably reach the capital late Saturday afternoon was delivered to Ann Thursday morning while she was at breakfast. Twice she read the message through, then laid it beside her father's plate, abruptly got up from the table and hurried from the room.

Ann's father found her lying face down across her bed. "How come?" he asked, dropping down beside her. "One day you spend a good hour telling me how much you love your famous young man; the next day you get a message from him and you blow up. Better tell your dad about it, hadn't you? Or aren't you pals any longer?"

She told him of all those things which had complicated her life during her six months in Washington, of Mollie and Carl and Selma and of Rita's affair with Carl. She told him of her engagement to Lee and how and why she had broken it—and how she had let Lee give her the lovely ring a second time. And last of all, heavily and with much difficulty, she told him about Bill Hudson.

"Now that I've got it out of my system, let's forget about it, Dad," she smiled up at him. "You can't live my life for me, you know. Lee's been marvelous and he—he loves me. There's no out!"

Mr. Rogers said after a moment. "This Bill fellow must be an awful boob." He watched the color rising in her cheeks. "No red-blooded man would stand by and see another man walk off with the girl he loved."

"Don't you see, Dad?" Ann said, gently, "it's impossible for you to understand unless you knew him. That's why I didn't want to tell you about it."

The day passed and Ann did not tell her mother she must leave on the morrow.

"Don't suppose I could persuade you to go back to Washington tomorrow instead of Sunday, Baby?" Her father said with a grin when he returned from his office. There was to be a house committee hearing on a bill which his congressman was keenly interested. The hearing was set for Friday afternoon and he had been asked to appear. . . . Ann never suspected he was improvising as he went along.

"But we can't leave Mother here alone," Ann said.

Mrs. Rogers smiled. "When your father says 'he,' means 'we.' He hasn't been away from home without me since we were married. . . ."

Ann's father took his wife in his arms and kissed her and held her off, laughing.

When the telephone rang early Friday morning Rita answered it. Her heart jumped when she heard Carl's voice.

"Darling! . . . They said you wouldn't be able to leave the hospital for two or three days. Are you quite all right?"

Carl said he hadn't asked permission to leave, he had simply notified them he was leaving. "I'm starting for Chicago this morning in a few minutes," Rita said. "It's about Selma, of course, but I'll have to explain when I see you. We expect to be back sometime tomorrow." A quiet excitement was in his voice and after he had hung up Rita recalled petulantly that he hadn't even said goodbye.

"He's probably had instructions to bring the ransom money, then," Mollie said when Rita repeated Carl's message. "Too bad you didn't warn Carl to watch his step. I wouldn't care to be in his shoes when he shows up in that plane cabin with Senator Runbreaker. If he isn't mad, I never saw anyone who was."

"I imagine Carl can take care of himself," Rita said, musingly. "You can't possibly think the senator killed—"

Mollie cut in, "You and I were warned that two persons were to die—and both of them are now dead. That's all I know."

WATER DOES NOT ALWAYS SEEK ITS OWN LEVEL

Water does not seek its own level at any time. If it seeks anything, it seeks the lowest level which the circumstances permit. Water does not rise in office buildings as high as the city water tower, and a fireman's hose will not force water as high as the level of the water in the tower. This is because of open faucets at other places in the water system. Water seeks the lowest level it can find, regardless of its own level at other points.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

EXPLORING OLDEN EGYPT. I—The Nile Valley.

If we wish to visit Egypt, we may board an ocean liner and steam across the Atlantic. After passing through the Strait of Gibraltar, we go eastward over the Mediterranean sea. At length we cast anchor in a harbor, let us say Alexandria.

other blood. In addition, the bright sun tends to tan the skins of the people. We are told the Egyptian babies in ancient times had white skins; but the bright sun tanned and browned them as the years went by.

Little rain falls in Egypt, but the Nile river supplies water for crops. Each year it rises in flood, and the people save the flood waters in reservoirs, for use on the soil. The flood also leaves a rich new layer of mud, and this is another great blessing to the farmers. The river is so important that Egypt has been called "The Land of the Nile."

Some of the oldest methods of handling flood waters are used by Egyptians of today. For example, the "shadoof" is employed, as it was thousands of years ago. It is a long pole, with a bucket at each end. In tombs and on temple walls in Egypt are all manner of pictures. We see men at work, sowing grain, reaping and threshing. We find that oxen were used for pulling plows, and for trampling on grain at harvest time. We look at pictures of slaves and others using the "shadoof" to lift water in leather buckets.

The custom of making such pictures on mummy cases and the walls of tombs seems to have come from a strange belief. It was supposed that a soul or "double" needed something to eat. In certain cases, food was left near the mummy; but in other tombs pictures were made of farming scenes. It is believed that the pictures were meant to give the soul a lasting supply of food.

Riley-Boland Engagement Told At Driving Club Dinner Party

By Sally Forth.

GOWNED in shimmering white satin with a cluster of white orchids nestling on her shoulder, Octavia Riley and her fiancé, Dr. Kells Boland, were greeted by the strains of "Here Comes the Bride" as they entered the ballroom at the Piedmont Driving Club Saturday evening.

The happy young couple was the cynosure of all eyes as they walked the entire length of the room to their places of honor at the "E" shaped table seating 125 Atlanta socialites assembled as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Malon Courts. The affair, you know, was in the form of an announcement party to reveal to friends the engagement of Octavia and Kells, whose marriage on November 14 is listed among outstanding social events of the fall.

To Roby Robinson, a life-long friend of the hosts and honor guests, was bestowed the privilege of making the engagement announcement. In his own inimitable style, Roby proved conclusively his ability as costmaster on this auspicious occasion.

Pretty Mrs. Courts was gowned in black lace with which was worn a red and black sash belt. The table presented a bower of floral loveliness in its artistic decorations of various yellow blossoms and crystal candelabra, in which burned yellow tapers.

MANY young girls have high aspirations and ambitions that they hope to fulfill, but a certain vivid young newcomer to Atlanta has them all beat. From the time that she was a very young girl living in a coastal town of North Carolina, she has quite openly admired a prominent ex-official of Georgia, and wears a senatorial toga.

Her father holds a political position in North Carolina, and she is a cousin of an ex-governor of that state. She has always lived in a political environment, and is at present employed with the governmental branch in Atlanta. This situation has, of course, enhanced her youthful ambition, and her many admirers are merely incidents to her.

Some of her friends, who often tease her upon the subject, clipped a picture of the prominent bachelor from one of the papers, and are having it framed and sent to her. But she is not at all, for she is very attractive looking with flashing black eyes and coal-black hair, and the certainly doesn't lack determination.

Reddick-Andrews Wedding Plans.

Social interest centers in the plans for the wedding of Miss Helen Reddick and Rees Malone Andrews Jr., to be solemnized next Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the Emory University chapel, with Dr. Raymond R. Patsy officiating. Miss Louise Reddick, only sister of the bride, will be maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Marjorie Andrews, only sister of the groom, and Miss Winifred Maddox. Harold Andrews, only brother of the groom, will be best man, and groomsmen will be E. W. Timmerman and Carroll Larimore. The bride will be given in marriage by her father, Henry Talmadge Reddick. After the ceremony the bride and bridegroom will leave for their wedding trip and upon their return they will make their home in Atlanta.

Many parties have been given and planned for Miss Reddick and Mr. Andrews. Last Wednesday Miss Winifred Maddox entertained at a dinner party at her home in Druid Hills. The beautifully appointed table was covered with a lace cloth and graced in the center by a silver bowl filled with white roses and fern. Silver candelsticks held white burning tapers. On Wednesday, September 11, Mrs. L. A. Mather will be hostess at a tea at her home on Harvard road for the bride-elect, and Thursday evening Mrs. Harold Andrews and Ewell Bessent will be hosts at a dinner party at the Blinn house, 1233 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E. An interesting game of kitchen psychology was played, the winner being awarded a peasant apron. Each guest was given a tea towel on which she embroidered her name and the towels were presented to the honor guest. Each guest was given a colored thimble as a favor, and Miss Garner received a shower of useful gifts for her kitchen. The hostesses presented her with an electric kitchen clock.

The dining room table was covered with a lace cover posed over green satin. The center decoration was pink roses and white clematis in a silver bowl. Green candles in silver candelsticks graced the corners of the table.

Miss Mary Dell Garner Is Guest of Honor.

Miss Elizabeth Barton and her sister, Mrs. Alton J. Floyd, of Rome, were joint hostesses Saturday at a kitchen shower for Miss Mary Dell Garner, bride-elect, at the home of Mrs. Ben R. Pettit, 1233 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E. An interesting game of kitchen psychology was played, the winner being awarded a peasant apron. Each guest was given a tea towel on which she embroidered her name and the towels were presented to the honor guest. The dining room table was covered with a lace cover posed over green satin. The center decoration was pink roses and white clematis in a silver bowl. Green candles in silver candelsticks graced the corners of the table.

Invited were: Miss Garner, Misses Marguerite Herren, Very Berry, Mary Ann Thompson, Louise McCoy, Helen Heaton, Mary Singleton, Betty Stanton, Alene Shuler, Mrs. Garrett, Helen Witt, Mesdames Charles Jackson, W. S. Williams, E. Pat Green, Blair Burks, Royce Collins, Harold Martin and Walker Matthews.

Engaged Couple Honored.

Honoring Miss Catherine Martin and Francis Duggan, whose engagement was announced recently, Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Cobb entertained at an open house on September 1 at their home on Lombardy way. The marriage of Miss Martin and Mr. Duggan, which will be one of the most important social events of the autumn, will be preceded by a series of parties to be given as complimentary gestures to this popular young couple.

Atlanta Woman's Club Meets Today

Atlanta Woman's Club meets today in the banquet hall at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Wightman F. Melton, the president, presiding and resolutions from the executive board will be discussed and acted upon. The literature department met Friday with Miss Lillian Pierce, the chairman, presiding. Mrs. J. L. Fulghum is co-chairman of the department. Mrs. C. V. Hohenstein was appointed recording secretary and Miss Clara Martin, chairman of current events.

Mrs. W. F. Melton, the president, extended an invitation to attend the luncheon on Friday to be given at Mr. Hall's Dogwood Farm, at which Mrs. Howard McCutcheon will be hostess in honor of Mrs. Melton. Mrs. Guy Sink, instructor of swimming at the club pool, will begin her instructions today. The pool will be kept open until the middle of September if the weather permits.

The executive board met last Friday morning in the Palm room of the club with Mrs. Wightman F. Melton, president, and Mrs. John F. MacDougald, co-chairman, presiding. Mrs. MacDougald spoke of the annual merchants' exposition and the following committees were appointed to serve: central committee, Mrs. W. F. Melton, president and officers and past presidents of the club, and the chairman of the departments.

General chairman, Mrs. John F. MacDougald; co-chairman, Mrs. Earl Scott; luncheon, Mrs. Alva G. Maxwell, chairman, and Mrs. Harry C. Miner, co-chairman; programs, Mrs. John Hart, chairman; Mrs. Charles R. Hartsfield, co-chairman, and Mrs. Harry Poole Sr.; of prizes, Mrs. William G. McRae, chairman, Mesdames John Williams, Mrs. W. G. Gottenstrater, Hugh Howell and Miss Fern Snider; tickets, Mrs. T. J. Ripley, chairman, and Mrs. W. H. Snaw, co-chairman; hospitality, members of the Junior Atlanta Woman's Club with Miss Ellen Rhodes, chairman.

Miss Brown Weds Edward Oxford Jr.

Of sincere interest is the announcement made today of the marriage of Miss Doris Brown, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brown, to Edward Oxford Jr., which took place on June 16 in Center, Ala. Judge T. R. Sneed performed the ceremony. The bride is a small brunette and is a popular member of the school set and attended Girls' High school. She is a sister of Misses Louise and Ella Brown and John Mack Brown, movie star of Hollywood, Cal., and Harry E. Tolbert, Billy, Fred and David Brown, of Atlanta.

Mr. Oxford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Oxford, of Atlanta, and Miss Harriet Oxford is his only sister. He attended Boys' High school and is connected with Sears-Robuck Company. Mr. and Mrs. Oxford will reside at 62 Twelfth street.

Piedmont Rebekah Honors Visitors.

Piedmont Rebekah Lodge No. 16, L. O. O. F., recently had as honor guest Miss Clara Jones, of Macon, president of Georgia Rebekah Assembly and other visitors were Mrs. Lillian Howard, marshal of Macon, and Mrs. Bessie Day, matron of the Robert T. Daniel home in Griffin. Mrs. M. C. Strickland, past president, introduced the president and Paul Lindsay, past grand master of Georgia, and the speaker.

Mrs. Nell Brown, the chairman, had Mrs. W. P. Irvine, conductress, and Mrs. Fred Holland present the assembly officers and past presidents. They were introduced by Mrs. W. P. Beattie, who was introduced by Mrs. C. C. Holt.

Mrs. B. Manning, accompanied by Mrs. C. D. Ritzer, rendered a song. Mrs. C. C. Holt, captain of degree staff, requests the staff to meet at Piedmont lodge on Thursday to practice. The Rebekahs meet with Piedmont lodge every second and fourth Thursdays.

Veal—Chivers.

TENNILLE, Ga., Sept. 8.—Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Verna Veal, of Tennille, to Ben Chivers Jr., Tennille, which was solemnized Saturday afternoon, August 31, in Sandersville at the office of Judge Thomas J. Swint, ordinary of Washington county, who performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a model of navy blue heavy silk crepe with hat and accessories of matching blue. She is the daughter of Mrs. J. W. Veal, of Tennille, and the late Mr. Veal, and her mother was formerly Miss Frances Price.

Guests Honored.

Miss Lillian Jones entertained recently at a luncheon at her home on Park drive honoring Miss Myra Ellenwood, of Fortville, Ind., and Miss Tony Milliken, of Rome. Besides the honor guests and hostess, covers were laid for Misses Vera Thomas, Rose Quillian and Rosa Lena Cousins.

AIR VETERAN, PUPIL ARE KILLED IN CRASH

DANVILLE, Ill., Sept. 8.—(AP)—A veteran flyer and a student pilot were instantly killed here today when their plane crashed into a bean field south of the local airport.

The victims were Harley Mielche, transport pilot and instructor, and Fred Snyder, to whom each was giving instructions. Both were married and lived at Georgetown, Ill.

Airport attendants said the men had been in the air on a few minutes when the plane's motor balked. Efforts of Mielche to effect a landing were unavailing, the attendants said, and the ship crashed into a field adjoining the airport.

It is a tragedy that the two young men, who were both well known in the community, should have met such a fate.

The bodies of the two men were recovered by the airport attendants and are being kept in the airport morgue.

The cause of the crash is being investigated by the local authorities.

Will Wear Grandmother's Gown

Miss Aileen Parker is pictured in the dress of her maternal grandmother, Mrs. John Henry Williams, of West Point, who was married on April 26, 1865. Miss Parker will wear this attractive costume in the "Parade of Brides," to be sponsored by the woman's division of the Chamber of Commerce, on September 12, at the Wesley Memorial church auditorium.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

(Posed by Carol Lombard)

A Youthifying Stimulant That Is Highly Recommended

By MIGNON.

I have always been extremely careful about recommending anything used as a circulation stimulant. One reason is that sometimes women in a hurry are careless and put cosmetics with strong ingredients too close to their eyes. I have found one now that I do not hesitate to recommend. It is not too strong, it is a liquid, and you can use very little of it. Naturally, you do not put anything that has any smart to it close to the eyes.

This liquid is a brownish green in color, has a nice odor of herbs and has a little sting or bite, but not enough to be bothersome. When you use it you merely tip the bottle on a piece of cotton, then dab it gently on the face here and there—not close to the eyes—but anywhere else on the face and throat. I like to rub the cotton gently over the entire face and throat, not coming within an inch of the eyes. You feel the light sting of it, which seems really to stimulate circulation, and then I immediately put a lot of cold cream on over it, rubbing that gently into the skin.

Somewhat the cosmetics must be right. A mild stimulant that starts circulation does make the skin eat up cream faster. At any rate, it seems that way. I like the refreshing feeling I have after this kind of a massage, especially after a day in town in the smoke and dirt.

This manufacturer who makes the new liquid stimulant has two other products that stimulate circulation but I have never been able to wax enthusiastic about either of them. In the first place the milder of the two stings so much that my face is screwed up into 40 knots the minute I touch it with the stuff. The other is even stronger and that is real agony to apply. The sting lasts for a minute or more, and seems hours when you are being so painful.

Make-up creams and various things for the skin are always written about the idea that they will be used by women with a skin that is not broken out. Remember that. When your skin is sick it needs a doctor, not a new kind of make-up.

Those desiring to play bridge may do so while special arrangement will be made to take care of members not playing bridge. Those desiring to entertain friends or their bridge clubs can call Mrs. Holsenbeck or Mrs. Ripley for early reservations. On September 17 the executive board meets at 10:30 o'clock, after which the president, Mrs. Kibler, will entertain the board at a luncheon at the chapter house.

On the following Tuesday, September 24, the open meeting will be held, and memorial services will be held for those who passed away during the past year. Mrs. Slaughter Linthicum, chairman, will be in charge of exercises. As September is the birth month of Rafael Semmes, Mrs. Bun Willie, the historian, will pay tribute to his memory.

WestEndClubwomen Will Sponsor Dances

Beginning next Friday evening, September 13, the round dances start at the West End Woman's Club, and will be held each Friday thereafter during the winter. A well equipped orchestra will furnish the music for dancing from 9 to 12 o'clock. Mesdames J. W. Simmons, J. W. Woolley and J. M. Flagan will be in charge of these dances.

A number of other activities are planned, among which is the fried chicken dinner to be given on September 19, from 6 to 8 o'clock, at the clubhouse at 1100 Cascade road. Plates will be 35c.

The business meeting will be held on Wednesday at 8 o'clock, presided by the executive board meeting. Mrs. J. W. Simmons is president of the club.

Miss Fancher To Talk.

Miss Lauretta J. Fancher will talk on "Personality" at the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Atlanta at the Frances Virginia tea on Wednesday evening, September 11, at 6:15 o'clock. Miss Fancher is a feature writer and teacher of personality development and the art of writing.

The program will be in charge of members of the research committee, with Mrs. Orin Carroll as chairman. Mrs. Flora S. Osburn, the president, will preside.

Personals

Mrs. Leon Mandeville and daughter, Louise, of Asheville, N. C., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Arnold on Peachtree road. Mrs. Mandeville is the former Miss Louise Arnold.

Dr. and Mrs. B. W. Medlock have returned from an extended visit through the New England states and points of interest in Canada, including Montreal, Quebec, Toronto and Ottawa. They went to Callander, where they visited the Dufresne hospital and saw the famous Dionne quintuplets.

Miss Marguerite Sanders has returned to Atlanta after visiting friends at Savannah Beach.

Mrs. Yvette Theodore Butler and her daughter, Colette, sailed on August 24 from Norfolk, Va., to visit her parents, Monsieur and Madame Leon Farlen, at Montbazou (Indre-et-Loire), France.

Service Legion Dance.

Miss Hilda Isakson Becomes Bride Of Mr. Jackson at Home Ceremony

Miss Hilda Isakson became the bride of Ewell Young Jackson at a quiet but impressive ceremony yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grace B. Jackson, mother of the bride, on Lucile avenue. Dr. B. F. Fraser, pastor of the Grant Park Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends of the young couple.

The spacious lower floor of the home was decorated with quantities of pink flowers. An improvised altar was formed of fern fronds on either side with four baskets of pink dahlias and gladioli and seven-branched candelabra held burning tapers.

Miss Mary Wright, soprano, and Mrs. Lewis F. Kennedy, pianist, furnished the music, including "Because" and "I Love You Truly." The wedding march was played during the ceremony.

Mrs. Robert C. Irwin, sister of the bride, was the only attendant and was dressed in rust with brown accessories. Her corsage was of pale yellow roses and valley lilies.

Entering with her father, Andrew Isakson, by whom she was given in marriage, the bride was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his brothers.

Georgia Baptist Orphans' Home Benefits From Linen Shower on September 27

The annual linen shower for the Georgia Baptist Orphans' Home will be held on Friday, September 27, from 10 to 5 o'clock, in the main building on the campus at "apeville." This shower is sponsored by the personal service division of the Atlanta Association W. M. U., and means a great deal in the maintenance of the home. With more than 300 children living in the various buildings, it takes many sheets a week, besides the pillow cases, towels, spreads, curtains, table cloths, napkins, etc., and the linen shower helps to supply this great need. There will be a special entertainment for the guests in main building followed by a tour of inspection to the several cottages, where the children are housed. The annual event is a great occasion in the lives of these children and means much to them in a social and material way. Cash contributions are solicited for the purchase of supplies in wholesale quantities means a saving to the home in dollars and cents. Interested friends are invited to attend the home any day, and the management extends invitation to attend the annual linen shower.

Mrs. John M. Slaton Makes Urgent Appeal

Mrs. John M. Slaton, member of the board of directors of the Churches Home for Girls, makes an urgent appeal for dressers and chairs for use in the girls' rooms. The five homes for the business women would be much more comfortable with additional and greatly needed furniture, and the board will greatly appreciate any contributions.

Music Sorority Honors Alumnae.

The Mu Omega chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, national honor music sorority, entertained the alumnae of their chapter at a tea at the attractive home of Mrs. John W. Ware on Huntington road last Friday. The home was decorated in flowers. In the dining room the tea table was adorned by the lighted tapers and tea was served by the hostess, Mrs. Ware, and Misses Frances Snipes and Eva Richardson.

Officers are Mrs. Jeff Hutchings, president; Elizabeth Wright, vice president; Eva Richardson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Agnes Adams Stokes, recording secretary; Mrs. Willa Lowrance, treasurer; Ina Jolly, historian; Elizabeth Allen, warren; Mrs. Bonita Crowe, alumnae secretary; Frances Snipes, chaplain. Members include Misses Irma Jackson, Grace McKinley, Elise Jamieson, Mrs. Katherine McCollum, Mrs. Agnes Conley Quade, and Mrs. Eugene Allensworth, national alumnae officer of Mu Phi Epsilon.

Oakland City Club.

Mrs. R. L. Harwell, of 1025 Ogletowne avenue, will be hostess to the Oakland City Garden Club on Thursday from 1 to 2 o'clock, and there will be an election of officers.

The Ladies' Missionary Society of the Grand Park Methodist church will sponsor a supper at the church at 6:30 o'clock.

Recommended MOTHERS to DAUGHTERS for over 50 years

Mother said:
"Take CARDUI if you have pain at these times..."

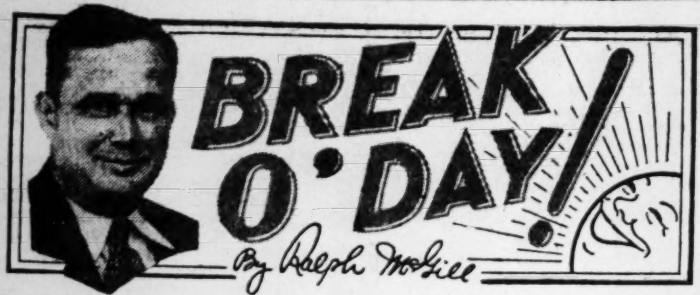

CARDUI is a purely vegetable medicine. It is an extract of some of Nature's most useful plants. Medical authorities acknowledge their great value in the treatment of the conditions which Cardui is intended to benefit.

Where the monthly periods are attended by functional pain, from the early teens through the years of mature womanhood and during the change of life, there are many times when Cardui should promptly make the patient more comfortable; and, by continued use for a few weeks, gradually strengthen her entire system.

If you suffer periodically, why not try Cardui? So many women have reported that it benefited them. If Cardui does not benefit YOU, after a fair trial, consult a physician.

Lewis' Double Beats Crackers 6-5; Team Returns Today

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 8.—It was an early spring afternoon in Augusta. But a few months ago.

Through the door of the lounge room of the Augusta National clubhouse came two stocky figures, Bobby Jones and Lawson Little, one the greatest golfer the game ever knew and the other holding the British and American amateur championships.

Little had finished with a 72 for a score of 288 for the four rounds. It was par golf. It left him low amateur but several strokes below the lead.

"I'm glad I came to this tournament," he said, as they seated themselves before the wood fire that burned in the old fireplace. "I think it was what I needed."

That was last spring.

Monday morning Lawson Little walks to the starting tee at the country club as the 39th annual national amateur golf tournament begins with a chance at one of the most remarkable records in golf.

Behind him are the British and American championships of 1934 and the British amateur championship of 1935. If he can survive the succeeding shocks of 18-hole matches over the rolling fairways and bunkered greens of Cleveland's championship course with its 14 dog-leg holes, he will have won his fourth consecutive amateur title.

There is many a slip 'twixt the tee and the cup in any golf match but the amateur championships, with their long run of 18-hole matches, provide more than their share. Yet Little has won 23 consecutive matches over one American and two British courses. And tomorrow morning he begins the first of eight more which he must conquer to win and complete that cycle, 31 in all. It seems impossible yet he is the favored one.

TWO HUNDRED AND SEVEN GOLFERS.

There are 206 golfers between Little and this fourth championship. And four of them are Atlantans. The golf tradition which Bobby Jones and Alexa Stirling gave to Atlanta, marches on.

Charlie Yates is here, the Western amateur champion. And Julius Hughes is here with his fine game. And it may be that luck, which has passed him by in southern tournaments, will break for him here. He has the game. All he needs is a bit of the destiny. And Crawford Rainwater, medalist in the state tournament, is here with a bye for the first round. And Charley Dannals Jr., with a steady game, completes the Atlanta challenge.

It isn't a faltering challenge, because any one of the four might be touched by the wing of fortune and do the job. Yet it requires a great deal of luck in these tournaments where a twig or a heel print may nullify all the great golf in one's game.

Little's way isn't easy. Because he is the target. There is just one opponent here for the 206 golfers and that is Little, the 207th man. He finds himself in the same old position which Bobby Jones used to occupy, that of the target, a sort of clay pigeon of the links.

They know they have everything to gain by winning and nothing to lose by losing. So every opponent Little faces will simply forget to worry and shoot all he has at the target.

It might easily happen tomorrow. There are so many good golfers here, well-known in their own communities but unknown here, that almost any one of them may have the game to win. Little meets Rufus King. King was a trapshooter at the age of 15 and won a national title. He has played golf but three years, yet already he has won two state titles and is the pride of his club at Wichita Falls, Texas. If he doesn't do it then it may be one of our Atlantans or a lad from some other town, or it may be that Lawson Little, with his tremendous power, will trample the field and come through to that most remarkable of amateur records, four major titles in succession.

It will be one to place below that most remarkable of them all, Bobby Jones' four in one season, including both amateur and both open titles of the United States and England.

IT MAY BE YATES' YEAR.

There is no telling about the game of golf. Tomorrow morning as the cars and buses move down the pleasant Pepper Valley pike to the Country Club, some invisible hand will turn on the pressure. They begin at 8 o'clock, Atlanta time, and well before noon the surprises will begin to arrive at the scoreboard.

It might be Yates' year. It is curious here, watching the blue sky and the green turf and the fluttering flags of red, to speculate on it all.

Watching golf one becomes more and more convinced of some destiny in it. The winner is the favored of the gods from the start of the tournament until his winning putt drops. And here, looking at these fine, eager kids and the veterans who stay with the amateur game, one wonders at which one the finger of fate is pointing. It might be Yates.

Charlie Yates was a real figure in the tournament at Brookline last year. They were in the semi-finals and Willie Turnesa was Yates' opponent. All he did was set a course record nine of 32. And Willie Turnesa then met Little but he had left his game there beating Yates and Little won.

So it might be Yates. Or Rainwater. Or Dannals. Or Hughes. Or some youngster from England or Texas or the coast.

Or it might be gallant Francis Ouimet who won the national amateur in 1914 and repeated in 1931. They are all here, waiting the morrow.

THE OLD GHOSTS COME BACK.

The old ghosts come back to me here at Cleveland. It was a bit painful, arriving. Because 1931 came back and the hot July days when just 20 miles out I watched the late W. L. Stribling train and work for his first chance at the world's heavyweight title. Six weeks of waiting.

And it was here we waited that hot day of July 3, 1931, for night to come and then go to the depths of the towering stadium where the fight was to be held.

We watched him surge ahead for ten rounds and then saw the tide turn as the plodding, stronger German came on and on. And finally there was the 15th round and the referee stepping in to stop it. I always had loathed those who said he hadn't courage. After that the feeling was more. He sat there, after the fight, dry-eyed, and grinned through his swollen, battered lips. "I guess the chance came two years too late," he said. It was a bit bad, coming back to Cleveland. This time I'm glad it's a bit.

REX SOX TAKE FOURTH PLACE, BEATING CHISOX

Boston Wins Both Games. Grove to Rescue in Final.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(UP)—The New York Yankees gained a game and a half on the American league-leading Detroit Tigers today.

The Yankees defeated Cleveland, 3-2 in 10 innings and 5-4, while the Tigers were losing, 4-3, to Washington.

The Yanks won the opener when Blondy Ryan singled and took second on Jimmy Deshong's sacrifice. A single by Hill drove him home with the winning run. Lefty Gomez started for the Yanks and struck out ten. He was relieved in the ninth by Deshong. Tony Lazzeri's homer in the ninth tied the score.

GEHRIG HOMERS. The Indians tied the nightcap up with three runs in the eighth. Selkirk's long fly in the ninth with the bases loaded brought in the winning run. Lou Gehrig hit a homer in the seventh with the bases empty.

Roxie Lawson, Tigers' rookie pitcher, suffered his first defeat today, contributing to his downfall by frequent wildness. The Senators staged a two-run rally and won in the ninth. After purposely passing Miles to fill the bases with one out, Lawson walked Estelle to force in the winning run after the Senators had tied it up.

The Boston Red Sox moved into fourth place by defeating the former occupants, the Chicago White Sox, 6-2 and 5-2. Wes Ferrell scored his 224th victory of the season in the opener as he held the Chisox to eight hits. He and his brother won the game almost single-handed. Wes drove in two runs and Rick three.

FOUR-RUN RALLY. The Rex Sox took the nightcap with a four-run rally in the fifth, aided by Hayes' wild throw into left field. Lefty Grove had to come to the rescue of Rookie Jack Wilson in the eighth inning to preserve the victory.

The St. Louis Browns moved into seventh place over Philadelphia's Athletics by defeating them, 9-4 and 7-5. The Browns won the first game with four runs each in the fourth and seventh innings while Merritt Cain was setting the opposition down with seven hits.

A three-run rally in the seventh inning of the nightcap was enough to win for the Browns. It was the A's eleventh straight defeat.

REX SOX 6-2, WHITE SOX 2-2. CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—(UP)—The Chicago White Sox defeated the Boston Red Sox, 2-2, in a doubleheader today.

Diversified IndustryAtlantic Ice & Coal Company Warns of Impending Advance in Coal Prices.*NEW LAW, MINERS FORCING RATES UP

Householder and Commercial Users Urged To Take Advantage of Economies.

The administration of the Guffey coal stabilization act and imminent positive action on extension or revision of the present miners' wage agreement are certain to bring about a substantial advance in coal prices within a very short time, according to executives of the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company, who urge householders and other coal users to avail themselves of present rates.

In view of the action of the National Coal Association last Thursday night, in agreeing to co-operate with the government in the administration of the Guffey law, it is virtually certain, these executives assert, that the effect will be to boost prices well above the present level. They attach little importance to the injunction suit recently brought by a West Virginia producer, despite the fact it ultimately is certain of a supreme court ruling.

These executives of the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company urge upon householders and commercial users of coal to beware of the situation impending—with the United Mine Workers pressing for an agreement on wage differentials after September 15, the expiration date of the present accord. John L. Lewis, union chief, they state, has indicated coal miners throughout the nation may strike on that date unless a satisfactory agreement is reached. This, they point out, also would contribute very definitely toward an advance in the present prices.

Thus it may be clearly seen that the coal user, if he would take advantage of every possible economy, should give serious thought to his coal needs for the coming winter, and, by buying at present rates, effect substantial savings.

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Company, maintaining nine conveniently located yards, is prepared to fill orders of any size, large or small, promptly and efficiently, from its huge stocks on hand. These stocks have been laid in with one eye on the situation about to develop, with a view to giving the company's many friends and customers here the benefit of low prices while they exist.

The company carries only the very finest coals, carefully selected for their "cleanliness" (free from rock, slate and other impurities), their full-burning and heat-producing qualities. Thus it assures its customers of full value. The Atlantic Ice & Coal Company's combustion experts will be glad at any

Cathcart Allied Storage Co.
Insures Efficient Service

The 134 Houston street building of the Cathcart Allied Storage Company, shown above, is known throughout the southeast as one of the most completely equipped of its kind for the moving and storage of household goods. Householders are invited to visit and inspect these facilities before storing their goods, whether for a month or for years.

The average householder, entrusting his goods to the storage warehouse, gives but little thought to the care that will be given his furniture, furniture and furnishings, and how their own will be cared for. We are proud of the fact the Cathcart Allied Storage Company's facilities are as fine as any in the country, and we can prove it. Come and see them, and be convinced of the truth of this claim before selecting a warehouse to care for your furniture.

"We invite and urge Atlanta householders," Mr. Indle states, "to visit our warehouse, to inspect our splendid facilities, and to see for themselves how we care for others' furniture and furnishings, and how their own will be cared for. We are proud of the fact the Cathcart Allied Storage Company's facilities are as fine as any in the country, and we can prove it. Come and see them, and be convinced of the truth of this claim before selecting a warehouse to care for your furniture."

time to give their customers the benefit of their wide experience in this field, and to confer with and advise them on the types of coal best suited for their individual needs. They welcome this consultation, which is given without obligation.

BROWER CANDY CO.
URGES 'DRESS-UP'

New Deal Offered; Entirely Revised Fall Sample Is Offered to Trade.

The advent of cooler weather—candy weather—has brought with it a very noticeable pick up in business, according to William M. Wallace, president of the Brower Candy Company, 187 Edgewood avenue, S. E., who reports the last ten days have witnessed a real comeback—"like old times."

The reopening of the schools, says Mr. Wallace, makes this a particularly opportune time for retailers to rearrange, dress up and put new life into their candy cases, with a view to attracting fresh interest in confections.

That retailers recognize the importance of this fall "dress-up," especially in the western Georgia territory, is clearly reflected in the splendid record set up by James Robert Lee, Brower Candy Company salesman in that area, who for several weeks past has led the company's entire sales staff. Though a member of the Brower personnel but a few months, Mr. Lee is one of its outstanding and most successful members. He is widely known throughout his territory, and popular with the retailers he serves.

With a view to encouraging the "dress-up" idea, the Brower Candy Company is now offering an extraordinary deal which includes an assortment of 12 different penny items, each variety in a separate candy display pan. Retailers are urged to take note and investigate this special fall offering.

The Brower Candy Company starts this week with an entirely new fall sample line, featuring a complete line of high quality bulk candies and a new and attractive line of fine chocolates, novelties and confection specialties. The ever-popular "Sweetly Yours" line, a strictly Georgia-made favorite, is featured, and the Brower offerings include virtually every novelty bar and penny goods item on the market.

It is of the utmost importance, says Mr. Wallace, that retailers check up on their candy departments, get rid of those slow-moving items that hamper effective and profitable merchandising, and avail themselves of the countless brand-new and popular candies which the Brower Candy Company has ready for the fall trade. The company's salesmen call regularly on the trade throughout the state and prompt delivery is assured for all orders, large or small.

'BLIND' FLIGHT LINKS

N. Y. AND KANSAS CITY
KANSAS CITY, Sept. 8.—(AP)—A "flying laboratory" transport plane piloted by D. W. "Tommy" Tomlinson, arrived at the Kansas City municipal airport at 4:00 p. m. (Atlanta time) today, on a "blind" flight from New York. The plane left New York at 9:10 a. m., eastern standard time. Tomlinson was accompanied by Howard Moore, radio engineer for Transcontinental and Western Air, and Mark Barron, Associated Press staff writer.

New York Stock House Foresees Sharp Gain
In Fall and Winter Business in Southeast

The New York Stock House, at 206 Pryor street, S. W., whose spacious building is pictured here, is prepared to render an unprecedented service to southeastern merchants. In its commodious stock and display room, approximately 15,000 garments—ladies' and children's dresses, suits and coats, are ready to be seen and inspected.

Fully confident that the depression is wholly a thing of the past, merchants are eagerly looking forward to what they expect to be the best fall and winter season in more than a half-decade, according to I. D. Weitz, president of the New York Stock House, 206 Pryor street, S. W.

Significant of this confidence, Mr. Weitz points out is the fact that since the recent Style and Market Week observance here the New York Stock House has added approximately 200 new accounts among retail merchants in the southeast. Style and Market Week, he asserts, was an outstanding success. During that week hundreds of buyers from points far and near visited the New York Stock House to inspect its complete line of ladies' coats, suits and party dresses, and allied lines.

The company carries what is declared to be the largest and most complete stock of ladies' and children's garments in its history, and one of the largest to be found in the entire south. Its main stock and display rooms are equipped to hold approximately 15,000 garments, and it is compelled by the increasing demand to utilize this entire space.

The New York Stock House's stocks include a full line of children's dresses for school, street and sports wear, and complete lines for misses and juniors. In addition, the company this year has introduced, for the benefit of its growing number of customers, a complete line of fur coats—a stock it will be to the merchants' advantage to inspect.

New Machinery Provides Increased Efficiency in Hat Cleaning, Restyling

In keeping with its policy of providing the finest possible service to its customers, and whenever possible improving this service, Roselle, the Hatter, at 35 Forsyth street, N. W., has just completed installation of additional factory-type machinery every to handle the steadily increasing volume of hat cleaning, blocking, repairs and restyling.

Methods Remodeled by Roselle, the Hatter, declares Tony F. Roselle Jr., manager, are identical with those followed by the nationally famous Roselle hat factory in Louisville, founded and operated by the father of the Atlanta hatter. The Forsyth street plant here, in fact, was established with a view to providing a speedier service to hat stores and cleaners throughout the Georgia-Florida-Alabama-Carolina area.

Roselle, the Hatter, renders to the discriminating individual the same prompt and perfect service it provides for these establishments—a service made more efficient and more thorough-going through the installation of new equipment.

The transition from straw hats to felt, Mr. Roselle points out, will necessitate the cleaning and reblocking, and in many instances the complete restyling of last season's felt headgear. To avert the rush that this seasonal business is expected to bring, he urges Atlantans to bring their hats in as early as possible, so they may thus be assured of prompt service.

Roselle, the Hatter, maintains an unusually complete assortment of both round oval and long oval blocks, thus insuring perfect blocking of the hats to fit any head.

THE TARZAN TWINS No. 7

The malignant minds of the disgraced cannibal chief and his witch-doctor seethed with thoughts of dreadful vengeance as Tarzan warned grimly: "If your Bagalla raiders invade my country again, death shall be your punishment, for Tarzan is mighty, and Tarzan is just!"

Then the ape-man called Muviro aside: "Return the stolen maidens to their village, then follow me. I must hurry to meet the young bwana at the railroad. Two civilized boys must not be left alone for a moment in the heart of Africa. Their safety is in my hands!"
